A HOME PAPER FOR PEOPLE WHO THINK

THE Peach

VOL. 25—No. 10 Published Daily by New England Newspaper Publishing Co., 3 Winthrop Square BOSTON, SATURDAY, MARCH 31, 1928 Entered as second class mail matter at Boston, Mass., under the act of March 3, 1879 2 CENTS WITHIN 50 MILES OF BOSTON. 3 CENTS ELSEWHERE

GEORGE HALDEMAN and Eddie Stinson, Americans, yesterday broke the world's endurance record in the air, flying without stopping 53½ hours.

The French government offers a million francs to any French flier that will win back some flying records formerly held by French fliers.

A little encouragement from our Government would make it impossible for any nation to compete with American flying.

The first flying machine was made here. Lindbergh was born here. We have the money and engineers. This ought to be the flying nation.

This comes from Italy: "Major De Bernardni has established a new world's air record, 318¾ miles an hour."

Will solemn naval gentlemen who call flying machines "only an auxiliary" be good epough to tell what chance slow-moving ships on the surface would have against a flock of airplanes with that speed?

The biggest news of the day is Mussolini's open attack on the Pope and the Catholic church. He issues an order that "all organizations of Italian youth must be under Fascist direction." In thirty days all religious or other non-Fascist organizations for enrolling the young must disband.

London says "the Italian King will assert himself in defense of the Italian constitution or abdicate." Mussolini would take his job.

Great Britain probably will allow women to vote at 21, as men do. Our intelligent contribution to the House of Commons, Lady Astor, of Virginia, amused herself while the "votes for flappers" was discussed.

She pointed out that the "flappiest flapper" has an intellect above the average "cake eater," and referred to the opposition as "Albatrosses tied around our necks." Lady Astor should come back and work in our home Congress for a little while.

The new law will add 5,000,000 enfranchisements to 5,000,000 more women. Then 14,250,000 women will vote against 12,250,000 men. That ought to help Britain.

On the great mountain called Nashan, in Manchuria, far up where air is pure and clear, Japan, as a monument to the Emperor, will build the greatest astronomical observatory in Asia.

That observatory, with a 60-inch reflector and 30-inch refracting telescope, will be a much nobler monument than any rearing horse of bronze.

Harvard will make educational moving pictures, appropriating funds for a "university film foundation," letting schools and colleges use the films. Harvard hopes to make the enterprise self-supporting. Well done. It could make money enough to run Harvard College easily. A good picture is worth ten thousand words, and remains in the mind when the words are forgotten.

Another 4,000,000 share day on the Stock Exchange, in fact, a four million and a quarter share day. American Radio almost caught up with General Motors. It really is foolish to sell this country short, especially in a bull campaign.

A "100 to 1 shot," Tipperary Tim, won the Grand National steeplechase yesterday. An American horse led the race nearly all the way, four miles and 856 yards, the hardest course in the world. The American horse, Billy Barton, belonging to Mr. Bruce of Baltimore, fell at the last fence. His Irish jockey, Cullinan, remounted. Forty-one horses started, a record for the great race. Only two were able to finish.

FIEND SLAYS TEACHER

Body Found at Concord That of Beverly Girl

Murdered while battling furiously for her honor on an auto ride with a fiend she had trusted, Marguerite Isabelle Stewart, Beverly school teacher, was cast away in death by the roadside on the Cambridge turnpike, a mile from the center of Concord, where her body was found by a chance passer-by.

State authorities and the police of every city and town for miles around Boston are engaged today on a man-hunt for the slayer.

The leading clue is the report of a Boston optometrist that he saw a man placing the inert form of a girl in an automobile near Lake Walden, on the Concord-Waltham-Boston highway.

Boston police are searching all public garages, and as many private garages as possible, for an automobile with bloodstained cushions, at the request of Capt. Thomas Bligh, chief of state detectives.

Police Searching All Garages

"While there's a drop of blood left in my veins and a breath in my lungs, I will hunt for the murderer of my angel," the dead teacher's father, Charles E. Stewart of Worcester, declared, begging the police to find and punish the killer.

Besides an ugly wedge-shaped gash three inches long over her temple, which exposed her brain and caused her death, the slain teacher, a girl 27 years old, was otherwise cruelly bruised.

The dainty silk scarf she wore was wound about her neck as if the murderer also tried to garrote her. Her clothing and undergarments were torn and partially stripped from her body. Her fur coat was split up the back.

Screams were heard in a passing automobile by a man and wife living on the Sandy Pond road, Lincoln, not far from Lake Walden, two hours before the Boston man saw a girl being lifted into an auto.

Piece of Girl's Skull Missing

Less than an hour before the body was discovered, two Concord boys, Henry and Leonard Smith, saw an automobile parked on the Cambridge turnpike. A little while later it was gone but they noticed a "bundle" in the road. It was there that the girl's body was found by another man.

A piece of the victim's skull, gouged out by the instrument of death, is missing. Search for this and also for the girl's hat, pieces of clothing, footprints and automobile tracks was made in by-lanes off the Lake Walden and Sandy Pond roads by Serig. Herbert A. Cook of the Concord police and newspapermen.

The girl evidently had made so brave a struggle against her attacker that he became infuriated, and when he was thwarted by her resistance beat her with murderous fury, using an automobile wrench or other instrument.

After determining unquestionably that it was a murder, State Detectives Edward O'Neil and Edward Sherlock went from Concord to Beverly to search among the girl's effects for

WILLIS' DEATH HALTS HOOVER DRIVE IN OHIO

Columbus, O., March 31 (AP)—Death last night of Senator Willis brought a termination today to the heated political battle between his supporters and Herbert Hoover.

Thad Brown, manager of the Hoover campaign in Ohio, announced today cancellation of all Hoover political meetings scheduled for tonight and the closing temporarily of all Hoover-for-President headquarters in Ohio.

Friends of Sen. Willis were expected to reach a decision today whether to continue the fight for election of his pledged candidates.

Decision to withdraw, it was pointed out, would mean that Hoover would get a large part of Ohio's 51 votes in the Kansas City Republican convention.

NAME STAYS ON BALLOT

The death of Senator Willis will not alter the preferential primary, Clarence J. Brown, secretary of state, ruled today. He said Senator Willis' name would remain on the ballot.

All of the 51 Willis delegate candidates are pledged second choice to former Governor Frank Lowden of Illinois, Sen. Charles Curtis of Kansas and Charles Fisher, retired newspaper publisher of Wilmington.

TICKERS RUN OVERTIME AS STOCK PRICES DROP

Stock tickers worked 58 minutes overtime today, unable to keep up with the vast burden of Wall Street transactions. Prices closed generally below yesterday's final figures.

Radio Corporation reacted rapidly from $196 a share to $185. This was after more than 20 issues had increased $1 to $5 a share to new high record prices.

General Motors closed slightly above its day's low. This was after tumbling from $194.87½ to $186. Westinghouse Electric dropped to $109 after reaching $111.87½.

Week-end profit taking reached unusual proportions. This brought about the declines, brokers believed.

Sales were estimated to have reached another record high for a Saturday short session.

MRS. HARDWICK'S GEMS STOLEN IN HOYT HOME

New York, March 31 (INS)—Five brooches and a diamond ring, valued at more than $5000, were stolen from Mrs. H. R. Hardwick of Boston, a guest in the home of her sister, Mrs. Richard Hoyt, 32 East 67th st., police learned today.

Mrs. Hardwick placed the jewelry on her dresser Thursday and returned in a few hours to discover it was gone. Thorough search of the house was unavailing.

The missing jewels comprised two brooches worth $450 each, two brooches worth $1200 each; one brooch worth $1500 and a diamond ring valued at several hundred dollars.

Wales Sets Record! 3 Tumbles in One Day in 2 Races

Bromsgrove, Worcestershire, Eng., March 31 (AP)—The Prince of Wales rode in two steeplechases today, was thrown three times, gave up in his first race when he tumbled twice but finished the second race despite his third fall of the day.

In the first race, the Prince came a cropper at the fourth fence, but remounted and continued. On the second time around he fell at the same fence and decided he had enough of that race.

Undaunted by the sodden course, the Prince started in the second race. But the hoodoo was still with him and at the same old fourth fence he fell again. He caught his horse, remounted and finished the course amid wild cheers.

SIX SAVED FROM FIRE IN REVERE

Six persons, including two children, were assisted to safety and damage estimated at $5000 was caused when a two-story bungalow at 1 Messenger st., Revere, was destroyed by fire.

Starting from an overheated stove, according to police and firemen, the flames had attained considerable headway when discovered, and by the time the fire fighters arrived the house was doomed.

Those taken out were Mr. and Mrs. Sudano Sebastino, owners of the house and occupants of the second floor, and Mr. and Mrs. John Ferrance and their two children, who lived on the first floor.

The blaze was discovered by John Esparito, who lives next door, and who was awakened by the crackling of flames. Esparito looked out a window, saw the Sebastino house in flames and shouted an alarm, which was transmitted to the fire department over the telephone by one of the neighbors. Esparito then rushed into the burning house and led the occupants to the street in their night clothing.

FRANCE TO ASK 4 OTHER POWERS TO BAN WAR

Washington, March 31 (AP)—France today asserted her readiness to submit to the German, British, Italian and Japanese governments all the Franco-American anti-war correspondence with the draft of a general treaty pledging them not to resort to war.

The purpose of these submissions as outlined in a note handed to Secretary Kellogg by Ambassador Claudel, would be that the four governments might "join in seeking, in the spirit and in the letter of the last American note, any adjustments which in the last analysis may be forthcoming with respect to the possibility of reconciling previous obligations with the terms of the contemplated treaty."

While the new French note abandons previous insistence that the anti-war pledge be restricted to wars of aggression, three points are outlined as necessary, in the French

GIRL TEACHER WAS BEATEN TO DEATH ON AUTO RIDE

letters and other clues, while preparations for an autopsy were made by Dr. Henry J. Walcott, medical examiner, assisted by Police Chief William G. Ryan of Concord.

The detectives hoped to learn in Beverly where the teacher was accustomed to spend the Thursday evening which she had left. Last Thursday evening she did not return and her whereabouts all day Friday is a mystery.

Had Sweetheart in Boston

She had a sweetheart in Boston, according to her brother, Wallace Stewart of Worcester, who made the positive identification of the dead girl at Concord today, establishing it beyond a doubt by a scar on the left side of the throat. He did not mention the sweetheart to the police at Concord, but before leaving his Worcester home had mentioned it to Detective Andrew O'Brien, adding that he did not wish to involve an innocent man in the crime and would therefore withhold the name.

The dead girl's father told the investigators that she had a picture of a Marlboro youth, Samuel White, on her dresser at the Beverly school.

White, who is 21 and lives on Berkeley st., Marlboro, corroborated this but said he had seen Marguerite but twice in eight months, the last time two months ago when she visited his mother, whom she had met at church.

"She told us she had a man friend in Beverly who used to take her riding," said White. "She seemed to be very much pleased with this fellow. I never took her riding or to any social affairs or anything. She mentioned the name of the Beverly man, but it has slipped my memory."

At the Beverly school the State officers wer etold that, upon going to work there, the slain teacher said she had a brother in Boston. She had no relative here, according to her family.

Shortly after the identification was made, George B. Caldwell, living in Concord, but with a Boston office as an optometrist, reported to the police having seen a man lifting an inert woman into a car near Lake Walden.

This spot is about a mile and half from where the body was found and on a more popular highway.

"It was 7:15 Friday morning," said Coldwell. "I did not stop because I thought there had just been an accident and saw that the man was apparently taking an injured girl to a hospital and needed no help."

He said the automobile in question was a last year's model, a sedan, but he did not note the registration number.

The time given by Caldwell is five minutes later than the time at which the dead girl's watch had stopped, and for this reason, as well as the location, police placed great weight on his story.

Death Occurred Last Night

It is believed that the Beverly teacher was unconscious at that time, if it was she whom Caldwell saw. It is known that the murder victim did not die until last night, within a short time of 7:45, when her body was found. The theory is that her apprehensive slayer may have hidden in the woods all day.

Another fact which the authorities have established beyond reasonable doubt is that Marguerite Stewart did not die at the spot where her body was discovered. At some other spot, or in an automobile, there must be a lot of telltale blood, they declared.

Two persons, Mr. and Mrs. George Roop of Concord ave. (the Cambridge turnpike), Concord, passed the spot where the body was later found twice between 7 and 7:20 last night and are sure it was not there at that time.

The slain girl left her home in Worcester to take a position as teacher-supervisor at the charitable institution in Beverly last November, partially because her ten-year-old sister, Marie Jeanette, went there at that time as a pupil. Their mother died three years ago.

Before her brother saw the body at Concord today he identified snapshots of his mother and little sister which were in the slain girl's handbag.

When he was led in to see the body he staggered and muttered: "That's my sister, poor, poor girl." He then made the identification positive by finding the scar. The face was distorted and bruised.

The girl's small fists were clenched in death proof either of her brave defense or evidence of the agony of pain in her last moments. Blood covered her forehead and face.

More blood from the death-wound on the right side of her head had formed in a small pool beside the body. Cruel bruises on both arms showed where the murderer had gripped her tight. Other marks showed where the tight-wound scarf had cut into the tender flesh.

The dead girl's hat was missing. This, and a blood-stained automobile, are among the primary objects sought by the investigators in their efforts to solve the crime.

Willis P. Bird of Hawthorne lane, Concord, found the body as he was driving by the spot.

Stewart Girl Slaying One of Worst in State History

DEVELOPMENTS today in the murder of Marguerite I. Stewart, whose body was found in Concord, are:*

1—Police determined that the young teacher was slain with a blunt instrument and her body transported to the spot where it was found.

2—The solution lies in the discovery of her male friends and acquaintances, they believe.

3—The crime is branded by the authorities as one of the most dastardly in many years in this State.

4—The victim's clothing was nearly torn from her body; she was bruised and battered. Her death was caused by a brain-deep wound on the temple, and there were evidences of an attempt to strangle her.

5—A missing brown felt hat, a watch stopped at 7:10, an automobile somewhere that must be bloodstained from carrying her body, a man furtive and fearful—these brought together will tell the story, police declare.

6—A determined effort is being made to trace minutely the girl's movements from the time she left the Beverly School for Deaf Mutes, about 6:30 Thursday evening, to the moment when her body was found in Concord, 25 hours later.

7—Police of the State and every city and town in eastern Massachusetts are co-operating in the man-hunt, and the victim's father declares he will track the murderer until the last breath is gone from his body, if necessary.

FRANCE IN NEW ANTI-WAR PLAN

view, if an agreement is to be reached.

THREE CHIEF POINTS

They are:

1—That the treaty be open to the accession of all governments of the world and to come into force only after "universal acceptance," unless the powers which had signed or acceded "should agree upon its coming into force, despite certain abstentions."

2—That if one signatory state "should fail to keep its word," other signatories be released automatically from their engagement "with respect to the offending state."

3—That the war renunciation to be proclaimed in no way deprive signatories "of the right of legitimate defense."

The new proposal of Foreign Minister Briand is that the signatory powers of such a multi-lateral treaty "while not prejudicing their rights of legitimate defense within the framework of existing treaties should make a solemn declaration condemning recourse to war as an instrument of national policy, or as a means of carrying out their own spontaneous, independent policy."

"FREE ONE, FREE ALL"

"They would specifically undertake, among themselves," the French note goes on, "to refrain from any attack or invasion, and never to seek the settlement of any difference or conflict of whatsoever nature or origin which might arise between them save by pacific means.

"It would, however, be clearly understood that an obligation could only exist for the signatories in the event that the engagement was contracted by all states, that is to say, the treaty would only come into force after having received universal acceptance, unless the powers . . . should agree upon its coming into force despite certain abstentions.

"Finally in case one of the contracting powers should contravene the treaty, the other contracting powers would be automatically relieved, with respect to that power, of the obligations contained in the treaty."

HELD FOR ASSAULT ON PRIEST IN BROCKTON

Brockton, March 31—Charged with assault and battery on Rev. John S. Svagdys of St. Rocco's Catholic Church, this city, Paul Gatanti, 50, of Webster st., a parishioner, in court today was held in $200 for a hearing April 7. Victor Yoseman, 36, of the same address, has been served with a warrant as an alleged participant.

According to the police Fr. Svagdys entered the hall during a meeting of a church society, and discovered Michael Kamandulis of Webster st., seated with Gatanti and Yoseman. The police say Fr. Svagdys ordered Kamandulis to leave on the ground that he was not a Catholic. The man refused to comply and the priest was escorting him to the door when Gatanti and Yoseman are said to have interfered. Gatani is then alleged to have struck Fr. Svagdys.

20,050 YOUTHS APPLY FOR MILITARY CAMPS

Washington, March 31 (INS)—Military training apparently grows more popular among American youths every year. The War Department has received 20,050 applications for admission to next summer's citizens' military training camps against 9707 at the corresponding period in 1927.

MOVE FOR NEW REMUS TRIAL

Lima, O., March 31 (AP)—Declared sane by the Court of Appeals, George Remus, former bootleg leader and wife-slayer, today still had a fight facing him before he is released from the State Hospital for the Insane.

The appellate court by a two to one decision held him mentally competent and granted him a writ of habeas corpus to liberate him from the hospital, where he has been since January 6 when he was acquitted of the murder of his wife on grounds of insanity.

Barriers to immediate release, however, were immediately erected when E. M. Botkin, Allen County prosecutor, set to work on a motion to the State Supreme Court asking a stay of execution. He planned today to seek a new trial and if that fails announced he would take the motion at once into the Supreme Court.

FOUR DRIVEN OUT BY FIRE IN REVERE HOME

Four persons were driven to the street today when fire broke out in the cellar of the two-family dwelling at 26 Jones rd., Revere.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Stone, owners and occupants of the first floor, were eating their mid-day meal when the house became filled with smoke. Stone shouted the alarm upstairs to Mr. and Mrs. John Tamolsky, who found their their escape by the front stairs cut off by smoke. They made their way to safety by way of the rear stairs. The fire is believed to have been caused by leaving kindling wood too near the furnace. The blaze was confined to the cellar and caused damage estimated at $500.

BEVERLY PUPILS LOVED SLAIN TEACHER

Marguerite Stewart, cruelly slain by a thwarted attacker, left nothing but sweet memories behind her at the school in Beverly at which she was employed.

With a hug and a kiss for her little 10-year-old sister, a pupil at the School for Deaf Mutes, Marguerite, who was a teacher and supervisor, left on Thursday night after supper to spend the evening in Boston.

Her embrace for her sister was accompanied by a smile for all the other little girls in the playroom, to whom the slain teacher was devoted. Her love-taking was like her everyday relations with the children. According to her superiors, she loved the tots and they loved her.

"They are all asking for Miss Stewart today and they cannot understand why she did not come back after she said 'by-by' to them Thursday night," said Miss Nettie McDaniel, superintendent of the school, today.

"Marguerite was really more of a supervisor than teacher, mingling with the boys and girls in their play and at their little tasks and guiding them in many ways.

JOKED ABOUT MONEY

"She had supper with us as usual Thursday evening. After supper she said she was going out, as usual. She had Thursday evening and Friday afternoon off, but always came back at 10:30 Thursday evening.

"We assumed she was going to Boston because she remarked, jokingly, 'I'm not going to spend much money in Beverly.' One of the girls said she only had $1.75 with her.

"She kissed her sister good-bye, said good-bye to the other little girls in the playroom with her sister, and started walking toward Beverly center, unaccompanied. When she did not return, I was alarmed but not until she failed to appear for her duties at 1 o'clock on Friday did I really believe something awful had happened.

"I tried to get her brother, thinking she might be at home. It was 4:30 when I got him and he told me to tell the Boston police. I did, and the Beverly police, too.

DILIGENT WORKER

"To think that such an awful thing should have happened to a girl like Marguerite Stewart. She was a dear. A diligent worker, devoted to the children and devoted to her work. Athletically inclined, buoyant in spirits and refined.

"She was so striking in these ways that she did not have to ask for a job here. She came here with her sister, never thinking of working here. I was impressed by her and, as we needed a supervisor, I offered her the position. She accepted. That was in November. She won the love of all of us in no time."

325 CASES BILLED TO MEXICO HELD AS BRANDY

St. Albans, Vt., March 31 (AP)—Three trucked and twenty-five cases of five-gallon cans containing a liquid billed as tonic was held here today for federal analysis by customs officials, who suspect the liquid to be high grade brandy.

It was consigned to two places in Mexico and was billed as "Agartonic" and "malaria" tonic by the Canadian Health Producta Company, Ltd., of Montreal.

BOBBY BURNS' SNUFF BOX GIVEN MASONS AT CAPITAL

Washington, March 31 (INS)—A silver snuffbox, once the property of Bobby Burns, celebrated Scotch bard, has been added to the masonic antiques collection here of the supreme council of 33rd degree Masons. It is the gift of Mrs. Florence S. Babbit, of Ypsilanti, Mich., formerly grand chaplain of the Michigan jurisdiction of the Order of the Eastern Star. On the bottom of the box are engraved the words: "R. Burns, 1791."

Slain Teacher Had Sweetheart in Hub, Brother Says

Margaret Stewart, slain Beverly teacher, had a sweetheart in Boston.

This fact was disclosed to the authorities today by her brother, Wallace Stewart of Worcester, but he refused to reveal the man's identity, declaring he did not wish to involve a probably innocent man in a murder.

'I'LL GET HIM!' CRIES FATHER OF SLAIN GIRL

"I'll get him! I'll hunt him down! He must pay, if it takes the last breath in my body!"

A broken father, Charles E. Stewart, robbed of the person he termed his "best pal," avore vengeance today as he discussed the murder of his daughter.

"Marguerite was a great pal. She was a good girl. Since her mother died three years ago she kept house for me," he said. "I would never have survived the blow of my wife's loss but for her.

"I'll run down the person responsible for this and he won't live long when I get my hands on him."

Interspersed with a fumble of expressive threats for vengeance, the 60-year-old father told of his daughter's allegiance to him from the time of her birth at Hopedale, 27 years ago.

"I can't understand why she was in Concord. She never liked auto rides and I think she must have been unconscious when she entered an auto, if she did."

SHOTS FIRED IN 5-MILE AUTOIST CHASE TO LYNN

A five-mile chase in which four shots were fired ended today in Lynn when Harold A. Cromwell of Ingalls st., that city, was arrested for drunken driving.

According to the police, the car driven by Cromwell collided in Bellingham sq., Chelsea, with a machine operated by Richard H. Tuson of 37 Kempton st., Roxbury. Cromwell continued on his way, the police say, and although the Chelsea and Revere departments were notified, the young man was not captured until he reached McDonough sq., West Lynn. In Chelsea court Cromwell pleaded not guilty to drunkenness and operating under the influence of liquor, and was held in $200 for a hearing April 7.

LOOT SAFE FOR $175 ON BLACKSTONE ST.

Safe-crackers took $175 from the store of Pasquale S. Matarazza, 57 Blackstone st., in the market district, today, knocking the combination off the safe to get at the money. They entered the place next door, descended to the basement by dropping down the elevator well and then forced a door leading to the other cellar.

CHARGE REJECTED CALLER TRIED TO SET HOUSE AFIRE

Jersey City, N. J., March 31 (INS)—Stanley Lawarski, 46, of 54 Meadow st., Westfield, Mass., came here to call on Mr. and Mrs. Paul Rocieki, with whom he had boarded in Westfield until a few months ago. Mrs. Rocieki refused to let him in.

A few minutes later she found a pile of newspapers burning on the doorstep and a note to her husband, which read: "This is your last night with your wife." So today Lawarski is in jail charged with arson.

BROTHER SOBS, IDENTIFYING SLAIN GIRL

"That's my sister. Poor, poor girl!"

Sob-racked and showing the signs of a hurried trip from Worcester, Wallace Stewart, 24-year-old brother of the murder victim, today identified the body at Concord.

Still shaking from the ordeal he was led away by police to a nearby house to rest before further questioning.

"I haven't seen her since Christmas," he sobbed.

"We of the family kept in touch with her through letters she sent to my father, in Worcester.

"She lived for little Jeannette, who was placed in her care by our dead mother.

"It is too awful. Oh, if we can only find the one responsible.

"Poor, poor girl!"

Visibly affected, the brother was led from the room with the last expression fading into a label of comforting words from policemen who stood with him at the identification.

Before seeing the body, Wallace identified two snapshots found in the murdered girl's coat pocket. One was that of her mother, holding the tot she placed in her daughter's care. Another was of Marie Jeannette, standing with one of her little chums.

INDEPENDENT TAXI CLUB TO MEET AGAIN

Another meeting of the newly-formed Independent Taxi Owners and Drivers Social Club will be held tomorrow afternoon at the Roseland building, 1031 Washington st., South End. A good part of the 1500 owners and drivers have already joined.

The club was started largely through the efforts of John L. Donovan of Dist. Atty. Foley's office and William H. Young, president; Daniel J. Riley, vice-president; Leonard Albino, treasurer; Mathew J. Riley, secretary, and Vincent Courtenay, sergeant-at-arms.

NOONAN'S MISSION AND ZERO'S "TUB" ARE CLOSED

New York, March 31 (AP)—Tom Noonan's rescue society in Chinatown, where Nora Bayes made her last public appearance, and Urbain Ledoux's (Mr. Zero) "Tub" today were among four missions closed on order of Dr. Louis J. Harris, commissioner of health. The places were closed, Dr. Harris said, because of lack of space, lack of sleeping accommodations and bad ventilation. The Hadley Hall Mission and the Night Mission, both on the Bowery, were two other places closed.

DEMOCRATS WILL NAME SMITH, SAYS COL. HOUSE

New York, March 21 (INS)—Al Smith is the only possible Democratic Presidential nominee, Col. E. M. House, the late President Wilson's "privy counsellor," said as he sailed for Europe. "It will be impossible for the Democrats to make any other selection, regardless of what opposition there may be," Col House said. "The Republican choice lies between Lowden and Hoover."

MARCH GOING OUT LIKE A "LAMB," IS FORECAST

Following the stormy death of the March "lion" yesterday, the month will revert to its traditional lamb-like meekness to welcome the advent of April tomorrow.

Sunny skies and slowly rising temperatures are promised forecasters over the coming 48 hours.

She left her home in Worcester to take a position in the charitable institution partly because her 10-year-old sister, Marie Jeannette, was a pupil there. She left the school after supper, Thursday, to pass the evening in Boston and never returned.

MANY HUB FOLK AT THE GRAND NATIONAL, SAYS BETTY ALDEN

HORSE REIGNS AS KING WITH THESE SPORT LOVING ENTHUSIASTS

Steeplechase Classic at Aintree Won by Tipperary Tim; Billy Barton, an American Horse, Is Only Other Finisher

YESTERDAY WAS GRAND NATIONAL DAY AT AINTREE. THE race-loving Englishman stages each year a steeplechase that marks a peak in London's little season and is a pivotal point in Society's international calendar. Race history says that nearly a century ago the first Grand Nation was run. But each year the race has become more and more an international classic, until in this Year of our Lord 1928 every race-loving American who could go over did go over, and those who couldn't had to stay home and get their thrills via the cable. Had to wait for the clicking wires to know whether Billy Barton or another horse weathered those hair raising four miles and those heart breaking jumps and so is for a year the King of Horsedom.

OF COURSE, IN ENGLAND EVERYONE GOES. THE GRAND NATIONAL is the aristocrat of all the race events that delight the Englishman and which his American cousins journey miles to witness. Royalty, the castle and the county all turn out, decked in smart and suitable tweeds, to watch the field, or what's left of it, come thundering down the stretch. This year some of Boston's most enthusiastic sportsmen and women crossed the big pond to see the running. They were in the gay crowds that milled through the Midland-Adelphi Hotel on the "night before." They were in the county stand, or on its roof, with hearts thumping and glasses trained on the heart breaking finish, and they were in the celebration for the winner and the winner's owner last evening.

ONE AMERICAN WHO NEVER MISSES THE STEEPLECHASE is B. Nason Hamlin. Mr. Hamlin went over specially for the Grand National, and prefaced the big event with hunting in Ireland and fishing in the river Boyne, and for an epilogue does a week of shopping in London, and on today witnessed the Oxford-Cambridge boatrace on the Thames, when the slender shells, with their dripping oars, flash along in that classic contest. Mrs. I. Tucker Burr, Jr., master of the Dedham Harriers, went over for the Grand National. She and Miss Alice Thorndike, prominent in the Myopia Hunt Club, sailed together and have been joined by Mr. Burr.

SO GREAT WAS MISS PEGGY PORTER'S ENTHUSIASM FOR THE race, she appeared for half an hour at the last Junior supper dance and at midnight was aboard the limited for New York, to sail the next morning on the Baltic, and so to be in Liverpool just in time for the big celebration. She and Mrs. Eliott Perkins were traveling mates, and their foreign jaunt takes place under the duennaship of, I believe, Mrs. Henry Parsons King. Other years there's been no more gay and important member of the American set in Liverpool for the Big Race than Gen. Francis Peabody.

THIS YEAR, HIS GENIAL COUNTENANCE AND PRESENCE WERE missed among the night-before dinner hosts at the Adelphi. Gen. Peabody did go over, and did intend to witness the Grand National, to watch the field taking the jump at Becher's Brook, at Valentine's. To watch the entire four miles and more that makes the Grand National the most exciting and brilliant steeplechase run in the entire world. But alas and alack, the general had to cut his Liverpool stay short and come back home. Although there is no Boston-owned horse in the 50 entries, Boston is by way of being closely connected with an owner. Through Mrs. George Saltonstall West, and Mrs. West's brother, Harold Fowler.

MR. FOWLER'S COLORS ARE RED AND WHITE WITH A SASH of gold, and he wore them himself as jockey of Scotch Eagle. The Grand National as a race is nothing new to Mr. Fowler. Last year he entered his own horse and rode the animal. He didn't win, to be sure. But then, neither did many other horses, and Mr. Fowler and his horse "Hopahead" had the thrill and excitement of doing the four miles and some of the jumps. Out of the entire field of half a hundred or so, only seven horses made the finish last year. Yesterday only two finished, and Tipperary Tim is the winner with Billy Barton second.

WHEN A GIRL HAS SUCH SCORES AND SCORES OF FRIENDS in town as has Miss Margaret Winslow it seems a pity she plans to be married abroad. But such is the case, and so only the faintest peal of wedding bells will reach here as this popular Junior Leaguer and her intended, Francis C. Rogerson, exchange the hymeneal circlets significant of future wedded bliss. Miss Winslow went abroad several weeks ago, and Mr. Rogerson has but recently sailed, to meet his fiancee in England, and there, in all probability, the weddigs will be celebrated.

AFTER ALL, A WEDDING CELEBRATED ABROAD HAS SEVERAL advantages. It's something different from the usual nuptial function in a Boston church. The newlyweds don't have to sail abroad for their wedding journey. And it fittingly accompanies a trousseau gathered in the Old World's most famous shopping centers. Miss Winslow's journey abroad was ostensibly to join her paternal parent, Winthrop Winslow, and with him do a bit of sightseeing in Egypt and up through the Mediterranean countries. But I'll wager sightseeing with the bride-elect was not half so fascinating as shopping for her trousseau. Of course the wedding outfit's chief ornaments are Parisian made—a wedding gown from France is every bride's delight.

ON TUESDAY MORNING NEXT, WHEN THE MOTOR COMES round and "James" says, "Where to, Madame?" madame invariably will reply, "85 Essex rd., Chestnut Hill." Invariably, that is, if she is interested in the Farm and Garden Shop and its dainties and beautifully prepared goods. And full many an important matron is so interested. No. 85 Essex rd. is the Chestnut Hill establishment of that genial matron, Mrs. Charles Mifflin Hammond, of the clan of Lee, and like others of the exalted circle she is an ardent supporter of and worker for the shop. Miss Louise Fessenden is another of the clan supporting the shop, and there is likewise Mrs. Sewall H. Fessenden, mother to Miss Louise and sister to Mrs. Hammond.

THE SALE NOTICE SAYS THAT "WISE BUYERS WILL come early and thus secure the best choice." There will be delicious homemade cakes, jellies, jams, preserves, all those beautifully colored dainties for table adornment and prandial enjoyment. The inner man being amply provided for, the outer is not forgotten. The list reads, "garden books, traveling accessories, braided rugs, unusual smocks"—a perfect conglomeration straight from the hands of the makers. Of the sponsors there are Mrs. George U. Crocker, Mrs. James Newell, Mrs. James D Colt, Mrs. Horace Fraser and many another who has, in the Almanach de Gotha of Good Will, been frequently mentioned in connection with the Farm and Garden Shop's laudable enterprise.

HUB PARTY GETS WARM WELCOME AT PANAMA

By BERT FORD,
Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent

On Board SS. Calamares, March 31, via Tropical Radio Telegraph Corporation—An appeal for closer and more extensive trade relations was made by the Panama Chamber of Commerce in welcoming to Panama City the "Good Will" delegation from Boston Chamber of Commerce. The "Good Will" pilgrims were impressed by the keen interest and the hospitality of the Panamanian business men.

"These visits of business men," said George D. Arias, president of the Panama Chamber of Commerce, "afford an opportunity for the frank interchange of opinions on all matters relating to commercial interest and a clearer conception of what each must do in order to increase our business relations to mutual advantage.

"If, in the psychological world love is the strongest tie that unites two human beings, then in the material world commerce is the irresistible impulse which brings closer the people of two nations.

"All members of our association and the people of the Panama republic desire to foster the closest possible understanding and relations with the members of Boston Chamber of Commerce and all the people of the United States."

The officers and directors of the Panama Chamber of Commerce received the Boston Chamber of Commerce delegation at the Union Club, after which luncheon was served at the Tivoli Hotel.

In responding for the Boston party, William J. Fortune told how proud the visitors were of the Panama Canal, which he described as a monument to the United States. He added that Bostonians felt pride in the fact that Louis D. Rourke, a distinguished Boston engineer, had taken a major part in building the canal.

Panama City was reached at noon Thursday. The "Good Willers" encountered the first rain since their departure from Boston on March 17 in the Canal Zone, but, thanks to a delightful itinerary engineered by local agents of the United Fruit Company, nobody was inconvenienced by the tropical downpour which came while we were in the train that carried us back to the ship at Cristobal. We sailed from the latter port at 4 p. m. Friday on the United Fruit Company's flagship Calamares for Port Limon, Costa Rica, where we landed early today, and will remain until Sunday night.

No "Dress Parade" for This Pastor, Wear Overalls, He Says

Henderson, Ia., March 31 (AP)—The "Sunday-go-to-meetin' clothes" at the Henderson Christian Church hereafter will consist, at the suggestion of the Rev. G. D. Noland, of overalls for men and similar modest attire for the ladies.

The pastor objects to the church being made a place for dress parade. He said many men stayed away from services because they felt they could not dress up to the occasion.

"This is not to be a show," he explained, "I merely want the working people to know that my church and I are one of them."

The minister himself plans to wear overalls.

G. O. P. KILLING PROSPERITY, SAYS REED

Chicago, March 31 (AP)—The Republican boast of "Coolidge prosperity" is true, according to United States Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, Democrat, as it applies to great financial houses, transportation companies, the steel industry and manufacturing concerns.

"But," he added, in a radio address, "the entire agricultural class, composing more than 50 per cent of the population is struggling with adversity.

"It is from the favored class, who control the financial houses, transportation companies and steel industry, that have come the campaign contributions which have enabled the Republican managers to win success at the polls."

The general prosperity of the country, he said, has been ruined by the Republican Party, employing a scheme of deflation.

MYSTERY IN SUICIDE OF PRINCE, KIN OF N. Y. MAN

Cannes, France, March 31 (AP)—Mystery today cloaked the suicide of Prince George Christian Lobkowicz, 25-year-old scion of one of the most illustrious of the semi-royal families of old Austria. He threw himself in front of a train and no motive could be learned for the act. The prince was a cousin of Prince Edward Lobkowicz of New York and Chicago, who married Anita H. Lilme of Chicago at Watch Hill, R. I., in 1922.

FORD SAILS FOR ENGLAND ON MAJESTIC

New York, March 31—Henry Ford and Mrs. Ford today are on the broad Atlantic with their ship, the Majestic, steaming steadily for England.

Mr. and Mrs. Ford, accompanied by Edsel Ford and his wife, arrived at the pier at 2:10 a. m. and boarded the ship by a special gangway. The Fords went at once to their staterooms, which are know as the Regal Suite. This suite was shut off from the public six hours before sailing time.

The Fords cocked passage under the names of "Mr. and Mrs. J. Robinson." Before boarding the ship Ford said that he planned to spend five or six weeks on a pleasure trip in England, Ireland and Scotland. He expects to return on the Majestic May 6 or 7. He has no business plans in mind.

"Oh, we are just going on a little trip, just a little trip, and we have no plans at all," he said. "We're just going over and I don't think there will be any business connected with it."

This is Mrs. Ford's first trip to Europe and it is also the first for Ford since he crossed the Atlantic aboard his famous "peace ship" prior to the entrance of the United States into the World War.

Concerning conditions and plans for the Ford company, Mr. Ford said:

"I do not think we will have any equipment for our plants in the near future outside of what already has been published. I do not plan to purchase any new industries or purchase any more motor car companies in the near future. My hands are pretty full. Our production now is somewhere between 1600 and 1700 daily, and without a doubt by the first of July our production will be up to at least 5000 cars a day.

"We do not plan to manufacture planes on a great scale in the immediate future and our advertising in the interest of aviation has been more or less visionary work."

The Fords had come directly from the theater, where they had seen Florenz Ziegfeld's musical comedy, "Show Boat."

"Tell Ziegfeld I enjoyed it very much. A very good show," said Mr. Ford.

The Fords arrived yesterday on the Wolverine from Detroit. Their private car was shunted to the baggage track and they entered a limousine which waited for them with curtains drawn in the freight elevator.

Mr. Ford said he and Mrs. Ford expected to return on the Majestic May 3.

PRINCE HENRY GETS SEAT IN LORDS FOR BIRTHDAY

London, March 31 (AP)—A seat in the House of Lords was the birthday gift conferred by King George upon his third son, Prince Henry, who was 23 today. He became Baron Culloden, Earl of Ulster and Duke of Gloucester, which entitled him to the seat, a privilege which being a royal prince alone does not confer.

CHICAGO GANGLAND TAKES ANOTHER ON "DEATH RIDE"

Chicago, March 31 (INS)—Another murder victim, bearing indications of having been taken on one of gangland's fatal "rides," was found today under a railroad viaduct. The body was that of a well-dressed man of about 25. A bullet had pierced his head. A sum of money and a watch were found in the pockets, proving robbery had not been the motive.

G. O. P. EDITOR NAMED FOR FERRIS' SENATE SEAT

Lansing, Mich., March 31 (AP)—Arthur H. Vandenberg, Republican, editor of the Grand Rapids Herald, was appointed today U. S. Senator from Michigan to succeed Senator Woodbridge N. Ferris, who died March 23. The appointment was made by Governor Green. Vandenberg is 44 years old.

Can It Be Possible!

Having been out all night on a jolly party with an Englishman of obscure identity, Raymond Hitchcock of "Just Fancy," learns that his colleague in inebriety is none other than an aide to the visiting Prince of Wales. "What!" exclaims Hitchy, aghast, "is that lemon an aide?"

STAGE AND SCREEN

No Choice in Chance

Speaking of the convict at large in "Escape" at the Plymouth, one fussy feminine character quavers: "I hate to think of one of those dreadful men about—you can't sleep in your bed!" Whereupon the Captain reassures her: "Don't get excited, ma'am, think of the choice 'e's got."

DISSOLVING LENTEN SEASON FINDS TWO DOWNTOWN PLAYHOUSES DARK AND BARREN

OLD ENGLISH and Young America get on very nicely together, but the prince may not marry the girl of his choice. Joe Santley and Ivy Sawyer pose as the Royal Family that might have been in "Just Fancy."

MADELINE CAMERON, of "Hit the Deck," spends her time looking like a million dollars and raising a slippered foot high enough to illustrate the position of the clock at 10 minutes of six.

GLADYS McCORMACK exists in the "Land of Joy" show at the Gayety. Before escaping her, her employers sent out a letter—a "form" letter—and look at the answer they got!

CECILE DIXON works for Mr. Clive at the Copley and runs a shivery course with "The Wrecker" at each performance. Miss Dixon, together with the rest of the cast, is an experienced railroader.

AND IN THIS CORNER Don Lanning and Mildred Costello, of "Good News" at the Majestic, meet on the steps to hold conference and hands while discussing various collegiate matters.

FALLING BACK ON GOOD OLD DAYS

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

AMONG the many inexplicable flirts and flutters of the theater there are none so bewildering as its rotations. Viewed broadly, the drama is just one cycle after another—crook plays, homespun stuff and sociological manifestations, in almost definite order. For a season or two we have been skimming close to a new cycle—the dramatic revival. Really it is nothing more than just another fair shot at the good old plays which, at least, stirred grandmother's stifled emotions when a child, or enlivened dad's evenings when he was a lusty young blade. The psychology of the revival may safely rest upon its own achievements.

IT might be supposed from the present flair for theatrical revival that the native dramatist is petering out; running to seed instead of good plays. The facts in the case, however, do not support this notion. Smart drama is still being done through the regular workshops. But there has developed among playgoers a taste for the fabrics of yesterday, and astute producers, sensing the public pulse, have been digging into the mausoleum of buried treasure. There is first hand evidence of this in the artistic operations of George C. Tyler and Winthrop Ames, each of whom is a master in his craft. Each has gained mightily in public esteem through revivals, for Mr. Tyler's revivification of Georgian and Victorian comedies and Mr. Ames' resurrection of Gilbert and Sullivan have caught the eye, ear and throaty hurrahs of the multitude.

REVIVALS MOVING INTO LATER DAYS

WHENEVER a good, reliable and altogether new fashion is put into motion by some bold spirit you may be sure the best people will not only climb into the tonneau but also crowd the driver. Messrs. Tyler and Ames, having done a good job at pioneering, naturally may be expected to feel touches of ache and torment when it is discovered that other producers are pursuing the elusive dollar along the same winding trail. Sound business ventures always duplicate themselves. Just to show how the spirit of revival is spreading we are now face to face with "Within the Law" in all-star regalia. Chamberlain Brown, with the help of the Shuberts, has dusted the cobwebs from Bayard Veiller's stirring melodrama of late antebellum days and proposes to move it into the Shubert Theater on April 9 for a short stay.

• • •

WHETHER you agree with Mr. Brown's estimate of the playing strength enlisted for the venture is a matter of small moment when you consider that, in any event, it meets all requirements. As a revival, "Within the Law" may not appear, at first glance, quite ancient enough to deserve more than passing courtesy, for it was originally done in 1912, and still carries all the tint, taint and tincture of Mayor Jimmy Walker's own Broadway. However, as the theater has trained itself into a habit of re-setting its courses from season to season, the piece undoubtedly will be old-fashioned enough to assure microscopic study by those who gaze upon their drama with dimmed vision and through heavy lenses.

MR. CLIVE HITS THE MARKET AGAIN

THERE is an amiable actor working for Winthrop Ames who cannot be swerved, coaxed or bullied from a solemn purpose. He is Leslie Howard, whose journey through "Escape" at the Plymouth should furnish enough toll per diem for any artist who, on Saturday, meets only a salary envelope. Still, you cannot stop him writing plays, and you cannot prevent E. E. Clive from buying them; not that you would. As it turns out the combination has compensation in a simple understanding. Howard insists that Clive has grasp, insight and decision as a producer of untried plays; Clive declares that Leslie Howard is THE dramatist for intelligent people. And he cites "Murray Hill" to prove it.

AND so, it comes about, Mr. Clive has purchased Mr. Howard's newest manuscript, a play called "Survival," which will follow "The Wrecker" at the Copley when that lively comedy has spent itself. This will be sometime in June, explains Mr. Clive, whose prophesies, on the whole, have much to command them.

Gentle Grifter

VIOLET HEMING will appear with other notables at the Shubert a week from Monday in a revival of "Within the Law."

OLD CLASSIC IS REVIVED

"East Lynne," one of America's old classics, will be presented next week by the Keith-Albee stock company at the St. James. The play was dramatized by the book of the name, which was written by Mrs. Henry Woods.

Walter Gilbert

The play has been produced all over the country and has earned the reputation of being "the play that has made millions weep." It has all the essentials of melodrama.

It is a story of the home of Sir Archibald Carlyle, who weds Lady Isabel despite the objections of his sister. His sister proceeds to make life miserable for Lady Isabel, who, however, endures all for the sake of her husband and children.

Clara Joel, Walter Gilbert, Edith Speare and Frank Charlton will play the leading roles.

Gullah, the Language of the Negro

By DOROTHY HEYWARD
Co-Author of "Porgy," Coming to the Hollis

"Enty yuh yeddy buccum Porgy na done titte um cause dat nigguh hyan tumnuch flah."

These are the first words of the play "Porgy." They are spoken every night from the stage, but nobody has to bother about them, for they are lost in the general medley of the opening scene. We had written in our stage directions:

"As the curtain rises, revealing Catfish Row on a summer evening, the court re-echoes with African laughter and friendly banter in Gullah, the language of the Charleston negro, which still retains many African words. The audience understands none of it. Like the laughter and movement, the twang-ing of a guitar from an upper window, the dancing of an urchin with a loose, shuffling step, it is a part of the picture of Catfish Row as it really is—an alien scene, a people as little known to most Americans as the people of the Congo."

Dorothy Heyward

In describing Gullah as "the language of the Charleston negro" we are far more concise than accurate. It is the language of the people with whom our story is concerned; a primitive, little-educated group-type of colored people who inhabit the sea islands and a narrow strip of the coast of South Carolina (including Charleston). This region is known as the Black Border, because the negroes vastly outnumber the whites. The world Gullah, according to a widespread but not undisputed theory, is a contraction of Angola, the African district, a Portuguese colony now—from which the Gullahs are said to have come. It is as different from the Virginia negro dialect—which has become the standardized language of the negro in fiction—as it is far from the most conventional king's English.

Reed Smith, a high authority on Gullah, explains in his book the probable growth of the dialect. The slave owner, unable to understand the language or tongues newly arrived from Africa, attempted to make them understand his language by speaking to them, as many people speak to babies, in the simplest, uninflected forms of English. The negroes received this language and made it their own, but clung tenaciously to many African words. With their gift for speaking in pictures, they made of this mongrel language a thing of quaint beauty. In expressing the most everyday things, Gullah falls into an unrelated imagery by phrase that a poet well might envy.

TUESDAY SYMPHONY

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, Serge Koussevitzky, conductor, will give the fourth series on next Tuesday afternoon series on next Tuesday in Symphony Hall. The fall program will be: Berlioz' Overture to "Benvenuto Cellini"; Schubert's "Unfinished" Symphony in B minor; Strauss' Tone Poem, "Don Juan"; Debussy's Prelude to "The Afternoon of a Faun"; and Stravinsky's Suite from the ballet "Petrouchka."

PATRIOTISM DISMAYED

LAURA LA PLANTE is the girl whose love of country prompts her to get a uniform and be with the boys ("Finders Keepers" at the Boston). Which do you suppose she likes best, the boys or the country?

Here's Roxie

FRANCINE LARRIMORE will be here at the Plymouth on Easter Monday to re-enact Roxie Hart's merry gunplay in "Chicago."

OSA JOHNSON HEROINE

A new screen star has entered the photoplay lists—Osa Johnson, intrepid and also very attractive wife of Martin Johnson, African explorer and "camera hunter." Mrs. Johnson counters with lions, elephants, rhinos and innumerable other members of the jungle cast, the leading man of which is the camera man, Mr. Johnson, himself, who is behind the picture rather than in it most of the time.

Four years went into the making of their latest picture, "Simba," now at the Colonial. Martin Johnson ran away from his Kansas home when in his early teens through an irresistible desire to travel. He covered a good bit of the globe before he was 20, and on one of his visits home to Kansas he met Osa Leighty, who lived in Chanute.

Their courtship and marriage were as sudden as Johnson's other actions. Still the wanderlust possessed him, and a little later he and his wife, having acquired small capital, sailed for the South Seas to take pictures. This trip resulted in two pictures, "Captured by Cannibals"—and they really were—and "The Headhunters of the South Seas."

Generous Parking Space for New Waltham House

The problem of where to park an automobile will never concern patrons of the Embassy, Waltham's new theatre which will open early in April.

Thousands of feet of parking space have been provided and an attendant will be on duty at all times. This feature is but one of the many provided for the comfort and convenience of Embassy patrons.

The theatre is located on Moody st., in the heart of Watch City.

Looking Ahead

APRIL 9—
"Porgy" at the Hollis.
"Within the Law," an all-star revival, at the Shubert.
"Chicago" at the Plymouth.
"King of Kings" (film) at the Colonial.

CHICAGO' HAS BUSIEST OF HEROINES

Francine Larrimore, star of "Chicago," which opens on April 9 at the Plymouth, should be titled this season the "hardest working star in the theater."

In Maurine Watkins' satirical comedy upon Chicago courtrooms, defense attorneys and sensational journalism in which a "pretty lady gets away with murder," Miss Larrimore spends almost every moment of the play upon the stage. She is not even given an entrance, but is on the stage when the curtain rises, and remains the center of almost all the action throughout.

This would be strain enough for any star, but in addition to that, Miss Larrimore carries the responsibility of direction of the cast and every Sunday afternoon, as soon as her company reaches town, she calls for rehearsal for 6:30. This, after she has gone through the necessary hours of unpacking and arranging her dressing room which fills every Sunday afternoon for a company on tour.

As Roxie Hart, the Chicago jazz slayer, Miss Larrimore is giving the greatest presentation of her career. The play is a laughing affair from the first curtain, but underlying the amusement the red-haired slayer gives in her avidity for publicity, her tantrums about the county jail, and her beguilement of the judge and jury, with her pretty face and her pretty clothes, is an undercurrent for deep thought. For "Chicago" with a laugh, draws back the curtain and gives a view behind scenes of some perfectly recognizable—and reprehensible—phases of modern society.

HOFMANN PROGRAM

The entire series of twenty-four preludes by Chopin will be performed by Josef Hofmann in his coming Boston recital, in Symphony Hall, on Sunday afternoon, April 15. The great pianist will then also play Beethoven's "Appassionata" Sonata; and March from "The Ruins of Athens"; Debussy's "Soiree en Grenade"; and Strauss' "Fledermaus Waltz," as arranged by Godowsky.

VIOLINIST IS SOLOIST AT SYMPHONY

By MOSES SMITH

Two numbers on this week's symphony program have not been previously heard at these concerts, but the conservative element of the audience has no need to stop its ears. For what to many must be the unspeakable modern dissonance does not raise its head throughout the concert.

The opening piece is a Symphony in B-flat by Edward Burlingame Hill, played for the first time anywhere. What seemed like a sympathetic performance revealed a work written along the currently fashionable lines of brevity, compact and clear in form. Though it is hardly melodious, in the nineteenth century meaning of that word, this new symphony of Professor Hill possesses apt, sometimes stirring, ideas, interestingly developed. Though the style is thoroughly cosmopolitan, reflecting such diverse influences as Cesar Franck, Dvorak, Strauss and even the Russians, the individuality of the composer is always in evidence.

Ravel's notable Hungarian fantasy, "Tzigane," now first played in its orchestral dress, has already been heard by the writer twice, with piano accompaniment. The soloist, Paul Kochanski, could scarcely summon the fires apparent on the preceding occasions, when the piece was played by the Hungarian violinist, Jelly d'Aranyi, for whom indeed it was written. Nevertheless, Mr. Kochanski proved an unusually interesting performer in this as well as even more in the Bach A minor concerto for violin. He exhibited a tone of silken texture, fine musicianship and an ingratiating bearing.

This Bach number, strangely enough, was the only one on the program of which one might say that the composer did not have his heart as well as his head in his work when he wrote it. Certainly the two closing selections, the prelude and Love-Death from "Tristan" and the prelude to "Die Meistersinger," show Wagner writing at the top of his powers.

"NOW YOU TELL ONE"

LIKE THE OSTRICH that buries its head in the sand to shut out unpleasant sights, Blanche Frederici stops her ears when Gloria Swanson calls a spade by its right name in "Sadie Thompson." (Orpheum).

Tricky Matriculation

Like the thousands of ladies who claim charter membership in the Floradora Sextette, the number of gents who have been Keystone Kops is steadily on the increase. The latest distinguished Mack Sennett alumnus is Wesley Ruggles, director of "Finders Keepers" at the New Boston.

STAGE AND SCREEN

This Is O. K. With Us

Angeline Maney, without whom the Publicity Department of the Metropolitan would be just a publicity department, wants to know why Victor McLaglen isn't the ace of Hollywood's Great Lovers. She observes that it takes eight leading women to provide him with "A Girl in Every Port."

SHADOWY FIGURES OF SILENT DRAMA RESTLESSLY FLITTING ON LOCAL SCREENS

THE FINGER OF SUSPICION is again raised by Victor McLaglen when he cautions Maria Casajuana about saying her morning and evening prayers. The film is "A Girl in Every Port" at the Metropolitan.

AMONG THE BIRCHES of the old Spinach Hill district is this touching drama enacted. In it Mary Philbin and Norman Kerry are distressed to find there is no Santa Claus. "Love Me and the World Is Mine." (Scollay.)

MAY McAVOY, in a white wig and all that, represents Al Jolson's highest ambitions in "The Jazz Singer," the singing-talking-dancing film at the Modern.

THE FLOWERS that bloom in the spring, tra la, have nothing to do with the divorce case. Bert Roach and Aileen Pringle in "Wickedness Preferred" (State). The flower is a coreopsis matoidith.

THIS TANGLE has what you might call a familiar tang to it. Lois Moran and Frank Wells in same old clinch, "Chicago After Midnight," Olympia.

CAPTAIN FLAGG IS WITH US AGAIN

By LEO GAFFNEY

HAVING in the first place created more than enough of that famous character, Capt. Flagg, to go around, Fox Films are apparently unwilling to let any of him go to waste. So they dashed a little salt water over him, called him Spike Madden and bid him go to it in "A Girl In Every Port," now at the Metropolitan. Although this new glimpse of Victor McLaglen is a paler portrait than the first, enough of the delectable roughneck remains to keep him entertainingly busy with his multifarious wars and "wimmen."

FROM the slanting decks of a drenched little schooner is Mr. Spike introduced. He is first mate of a wallowing tub that is bringing him to Amsterdam and a "date." Once loosed upon the folks ashore a handy notebook and the traditional attraction of a gob for a girl is brought into play. The notebook, by the way, is a pocket reference containing the address and time of "last visit" to Lena or Gretchen or whoever the "dame" happens to be.

* * *

BUT whether in "Amsterdam, Jerocazalam, Johannesburg or Rome," as the old song has it, Spike Madden finds that all his lady friends are wearing a keep-sake bestowed by a deadly rival. To hunt down this blankety-blank whatsis and knock him zig-zag is now Mr. Madden's main reason for living. Those who have seen "What Price Glory" will suspect that Sergt. Quirt, in some form, is about to pervade the promises. Right. Up bobs a jersey-shirted sailorman in the person of Robert Armstrong, but like D'Artagnan and the Three Musketeers Mr. Armstrong meets a foe only to be his friend for life.

THEREAFTER, the two partners embark on the same ship and call on the girls as a pair. The film progresses safely and smartly until Spike, the smiling blockhead, nearly destroys the partnership by getting moonstruck over an ex-Coney Island diving girl in a cheap Parisian carnival. It is regrettable that "A Girl in Every Port" should suddenly go lame near the end. The last moments are quite crammed up with misplaced sentiment.

* * *

HOWARD HAWKS' direction generally is smooth and effective. With nothing very expensive to go on, his settings amply suggest the various ports of call. His supporting players are Louise Brooks, as the high-diving lady, and a number of lesser film beauties.

* * *

IT is remarkable how the Captain Flaggs of the movies can save such amorous adventures and escape the censor's searching shears. If the regulation screen hero were to be exhibited in the same fashion he would stand small chance of getting away with it. If Adolphe Menjou, for example, were to indulge in Spike Madden's escapades they would never reach the screen. Evidently, it all depends on who does these little chores. It is like W. S. Gilbert's sly declaration about the old nursery rhyme, namely, that "Hey diddle diddle will rank as an idyll if I pronounce it chaste." When Captain Flagg—or Spike Madden—joins the ladies it is "rollicking comedy," but let Romeo or Don Juan do the same and see what happens. If this is unfair discrimination, it is, nevertheless, good censorship, which is, perhaps, more important to the film industry than anything else that can be named.

STELLA TRUE TO COLORS

Stella Mayhew, who sings the prize song hit, "Hallelujah," in "Hit the Deck," at the Tremont, has been appearing in colored minstrelsy roles for so long that she is associated in the public mind only with that type of character. Many people think that she is really and truly a descendant of African forebears who once settled in the South. Yet, when the dusky make-up is removed and Miss Mayhew emerges in the light of day, there is no difficulty in proving that her ancestors were Irish and never lived below the equator.

Stella Mayhew

Miss Mayhew has impersonated colored mammies and has sung dialect songs of the South for more than 15 years. Prior to that she was well known as a prima donna in musical comedy and as a vaudeville headliner of great ability and drawing power. She was born in Pittsburgh, and was educated in Toledo, O.

Comedian of "Good News" Is Product of Vaudeville

William Wayne, principal comedian in that riotous musical play of college life "Good News" at the Majestic, began his stage career, like many other comics, in vaudeville. He works in the "two-a-days" when he is not busy on the legitimate stage. Comedians who can bring forth the elusive laugh are always in demand and in recent years Wayne has done most of his work on the legitimate stage. He has played in operetta, farce, drama and musical comedy. The brother-and-sister act known as Wayne and Warren had made good on the vaudeville stage when it received its first bid to try musical comedy.

Boy Chorus Joins Handel and Haydn for Easter

A chorus of 40 boys from the Country school has been added to the Handel-Haydn Society, which will present two oratorios Easter afternoon in Symphony Hall. The Country Day school chorus is being drilled for its work by Thompson Stone, conductor of the Handel-Haydn. The 40 added voices, combined with the full strength of 200 Handel-Haydn singers, 86 Symphony players, four noted soloists, combined with the Symphony Hall organ will make the concert an unusual event.

The society, oldest singing society in America, will, in keeping with its purpose, present new works. These are "The New Earth" (Hadley) and "The New Life" (Wolfe-Farrari).

Toe Dancer Began Career in Classical Drama

Gertrude Lemmon, whose toe dancing in Joseph Santley's production of "Just Fancy" at the Wilbur has won her unstinted praise, is a product of Boston.

She was born in Cambridge and began her stage career at the age of five with Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree in "Henry VIII." She also appeared here with Ethel Barrymore. When she was four years old she began to be featured as a dancer with Mrs. Wayman's May Festivals that were presented in Mechanics Building and so continued for seven years. She was eleven years of age when she graduated from the junior high and went to New York where she finished her schooling. While in that city she attracted the attention of Chamroff, the great ballet master who started Pavlowa and Mikael Monikin on their illustrious careers. Her first professional engagement in New York was made when Miss Lemmon was fourteen. It was with Earl Carroll's Vanities.

When a plan is expounded to Ralph Roberts whereby the gent responsible for all the trouble in "The Wrecker," will be caught red handed, Mr. Roberts finds serious objections with his part in the arrangements And he roars, "If this is a trap then I look like being the piece of cheese."

STAGE AND SCREEN

Sunk Without a Trace!

"How does one get married?" asks Stella Mayhew in "Hit the Deck," at the Tremont. "Easy!" gurgles a freshly married gob, "All you got to do is look for a bigger durn fool than yourself." Whereupon Miss Mayhew cuttingly replies, "Yes? Well, how did you ever come to find one?"

BIBLE FILM TO SHOW AT COLONIAL

"The King of Kings" will return for a brief engagement to the Colonial beginning Easter Monday night, with performances twice daily thereafter. This is the mammoth picture drama dealing with the last two years of the life of Christ made by Cecil B. De Mille from an adaptation by Jeanie Macpherson, based on the New Testament narratives. Presented for a short engagement at the Tremont a year ago, the play proved all too brief.

Jacqueline Logan

In consequence to many urgent demands the production has been brought back to Boston to be presented again in the grand manner with a large orchestra playing the musical accompaniment, especially written for the picture by Dr. Hugo Riesenfeld.

In "The King of Kings" are reproduced the great historical scenes of Galilee, the Temple, the Hall of Caiaphas, and Pilate, the Hill of Calvary and the Easter Garden so familiar to readers of the narrative or those who have traveled in the Holy Land.

Eighteen principals of stellar importance were required; there were no less than 330 named roles and 4326 supernumeraries.

Among the principals may be mentioned H. B. Warner, Dorothy Cumming, Ernest Torrence, Joseph Schildkraut, Jacqueline Logan, Rudolph Schildkraut, Montague Love, Sam de Grasse, Victor Varconi, Theodore Kosloff, George Siegmann, Mabel Coleman, William Boyd, Julia Fay and Robert Edeson.

Brand New Burlesque Is Billed for the Gayety

Jake Potar's "Land of Joy" will be presented next week at the Gayety with a new company headed by Max Coleman, one of the funniest Hebrew comedians on the wheel, and Jessie McDonald, an ingenue soubrette who is credited with making one of the most favorable impressions of the season.

Vinnie Phillips is another gifted comedienne who sings and dances. And Gladys McCormack, the prima donna, is said to possess, in addition to an excellent voice, a stunning appearance and a faculty of wearing gowns with the grace and majesty of an empress. Joe Hill, a Dutch comedian, and Irving Jacobs and Joe Wert form a trio of capable associates who lend valuable aid in keeping the hilarity up to concert pitch during the entire entertainment.

Pension Fund Concert at Symphony Tomorrow

Serge Koussevitzky will conduct the annual spring Pension Fund concert of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, in Symphony Hall tomorrow afternoon.

The event of the concert will be Honegger's Symphonic Psalm, "King David," which is to have its first Boston hearing, and which is accounted by many to be the contemporary French composer's masterpiece and the most significant choral score of the 20th century.

The full chorus of the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society, trained by Dr. Archibald T. Davison, will join with the entire orchestra in the presentation of the score. Solo parts will be taken by Ethyl Hayden, soprano; Viola Silva, contralto, and Tudor Davies, tenor. The narrator's part will be spoken by Paul Leyssac, of Eva Le Gallienne's Civic Repertory Theater in New York.

HOROWITZ CONCERT

Vladimir Horowitz, the young pianist who recently created a sensation as soloist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will give his first Boston recital in Symphony Hall on next Wednesday evening, April 4.

England Seeks Hollywood Talent

By LOUELLA PARSONS

LOS ANGELES, March 31—England's first decisive step to compete with America in film production centers around the arrival of A. Morsby White, representative not only of the British National Film Corporation, but of the British Government.

White has arrived in Hollywood all set to hire electricians, cameramen, directors, players and the other factors necessary for the making of motion pictures. He comes into our midst, they tell me, with a substantial bankroll ready to pay American prices if he can get the people he wants.

Doesn't seem possible that conservative England would ever agree to spend so much money but the matter of competition in films has reached the point where England, Germany and France will have to spend money if they want to rival our American producers.

The British National Film Corporation is building six new studios and naturally it's important to fill them. Sidney Olcott was the first American director to join the British National, and he seems well content if one may believe his letters.

The British Government has risen nobly to the aid of the British film producers by insisting that 25 per cent of the pictures exhibited in England must have the British trademark. Conditions today are very different in London than they were a few years ago. I remember when I was in London seeing pictures of such ancient vintage it was positively painful.

That was when block booking flourished, but today, thank goodness, there is no longer any more block or blind booking. The English exhibitors are not forced to book pictures without knowing what they are getting.

BACK in the dim recesses of my memory which I regret to say sometimes fails me, I seem to recall mentioning that John Monk Saunders was about to burst forth in a new film epic. That epic will be called "Dirigible" and like "Wings," and "Legion of the Condemned" it will have to do with the air.

Saunders bases his story on the first transatlantic dirigibles. Perhaps if he can explain how it's possible to travel that distance by illustrating it in motion pictures he will help world aviation. Johnnie Limur is writing the story and our old friend, William Wellman, whose specialty seems to be these air epics, will do the directing.

WHILE I am deep in this subject of British film production it is interesting to know that Adolphe Menjou for all his plans to star in foreign films, comes back to Paramount. Arrangements were made with Menjou in New York to make three pictures on a one year's contract. Paramount must have come through on the matter of money.

* * *

LOOKING over studios in Hollywood we hear many little tidbits of news. One of them concerns James Kirkwood, who is sailing for London to play in a stage production of "The Barker." We also hear tell that Jean Hersholt will remain another year at Universal. They have taken up his option.

Seems to me I heard something about a contract and Hersholt once before. Margaret Livingston and Polly Ann Young are now on the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer list.

Esther Dale Will Sing at Last Ravel Concert

Before returning to his native France, Maurice Ravel, most distinguished of living French composers, will once more visit Boston to appear in a recital of his own music next Monday evening, April 2, in Symphony Hall. The composer will take the piano part in each piece. The program has been revised to include the new violin sonata, which has attracted attention on account of its slow movement entitled "Blues," marking Ravel's first experiment in jazz rhythms. Alfredo San Malo and Ravel will play this piece. Esther Dale, soprano, will appear in "Scheherazade," in which there will be a flute solo by Georges Laurent. The program will also include the "Chansons Grecques," "Deux Melodies Hebraiques," and "Nicolette," sung by Miss Dale, and the "Chansons Madecasses" with accompaniment of an instrumental ensemble.

OHIO WAR ON HOOVER HALTED FOR A TIME BY WILLIS' DEATH

DEMOCRAT WILL GET TOGA

ton, O. Election of any of these delegates would amount to a first choice pledge to any of those candidates. One alternate is pledged second choice to Sen. James E. Watson of Indiana.

Governor Vic Donahey will appoint a successor to Senator Willis to serve until his successor is elected at the November election. Thus Ohio will elect two United States Senators this fall. Senator Simeon D. Fess being a candidate for re-election.

LOCHER FOR SENATOR

As Governor Donahey will appoint a Democrat, considerable speculation has started as to who will receive the honor. State Director of Commerce Cyrus Locher of Cleveland, who already has announced his candidacy for the senatorial nomination, generally is looked upon as the favorite to succeed Senator Willis. He is a member of Governor Donahey's Cabinet and the Governor's chief political adviser.

Heflin Asks Widow to Have Willis' Stomach Examined

Washington, March 31 (AP)—A suggestion to Mrs. Frank B. Willis that she have the contents of the stomach of Senator Willis of Ohio examined by a chemist was made in a telegram sent her today by Senator Heflin, Democrat, Alabama.

Senator Heflin described the Senator's death as "strange" since he was "so well and strong," and added "Pardon me for suggesting that you have a competent chemist in whom you have confidence examine the contents of his stomach."

State Grieves Dead Leader; Funeral Plans Completed

Delaware, O., March 31—The entire State of Ohio was in mourning today for Sen. Frank B. Willis, who died suddenly here at 9:09 o'clock last night in the midst of a homecoming welcome prepared by thousands of his fellow citizens.

Senator Willis will be buried beside his father and mother in Oak Grove Cemetery here, it was announced today.

Time of the funeral has not been set, but it was thought probable Tuesday would be decided upon.

It was unlikely Mrs. Willis will desire to have her husband's body lie in state at the Capitol at Columbus, as suggested by Governor Donahey, since she has indicated the services should be unpretentious.

Stricken by a cerebral hemorrhage, Senator Willis died a few moments before his campaign for the Republican presidential nomination was to have been launched in his home city.

National guardsmen of Delaware stood guard over the body in a little funeral parlor today.

As a quartette from Columbus began singing "Farewell," Senator Willis arose from the seat of honor, called C. A. Jones, his secretary, and retired to an anteroom. Leaning on the arm of his secretary, he said:

"Jones, I've never felt this way before in my life. Something's awfully wrong."

Calling for his wife, the Senator then staggered and fell dead in his secretary's arms just as the last strains of "Farewell" wafted through from the reception hall.

Congress Adjourns Out of Respect to Dead Senator

Washington, March 31 (INS)—Congress adjourned today as a mark of respect for Senator Frank B. Willis (R.), Ohio, who died suddenly last night. It is usual for the Senate to adjourn when a member dies, the House also to adjourn is an unusual thing. Willis formerly served in the House.

Washington, March 31 (AP)—President Coolidge sent today his condolences to Mrs. Frank B. Willis on the death of her husband, extolling him as an "eminent and effective advocate of causes which he considered just."

SEIZE 'SON' OF OHIO EX-GOV. IN NEW YORK

New York, March 31 (AP)—Arrested after a chase in which police men fired a score of shots, James M. Cox, 24 years old, who said he was the son of the former Governor of Ohio, was held in $1000 bail today on charges of assault and leaving the scene of an accident.

The automobile Cox was driving knocked down Peter Lorenzo, a laborer, on Fifth ave. at 29th st. Two policemen who were nearby began the chase up the avenue, not yet crowded at that hour by the usual shoppers.

The capture was made at the entrance to the Hotel Biltmore on 44th st., where Cox fell in his hasts to abandon the car.

Cox said he was a member of the senior class at Yale University. The charge of driving while drunk was added.

Cox told Magistrate Dreyer in Yorkville court that he knew his machine struck Lorenzo, but that he thought that Lorenzo was not hurt. The laborer escaped with bruises and cuts. Cox was placed in a cell pending arrangements for bail for a hearing next Wednesday.

STORE MANAGER NABS MAN WHO ROBBED HIM

Haverhill, March 31 (AP)—A chain grocery store manager, after being overpowered and robbed, today took the offensive so successfully that after a chase he captured his assailant and turned him over to the police.

The robber, who gave the name of Dale Harvey Darling, 30, of Beverly, forced the store manager, Ernest W. Lambert, to lie on the floor while he rifled his pockets and a cash register, obtaining only $26.50. Then he ordered Lambert to wait on a customer who had come in.

After the customer had left Lambert suddenly turned on Darling, who after a struggle ran from the store. Lambert pursued him up the street, caught him and held on until several other men came to his help. One shot was fired from Darling's pistol, but it went wild.

The police said Darling had been identified as the man who held up another chain grocery manager here Tuesday.

OIL LEASE THAT CAUSED ROW IS RENEWED

Washington, March 31 (AP)—Secretary Work wrote Chairman Nye of the Senate oil committee today that on February 29 the Sinclair crude oil purchasing company obtained a five-year extension of its contract for purchasing Government royalty oil from the Salt Creek fields in Wyoming.

The secretary wrote in response to a letter from Nye. He said that the original contract was entered into by Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior for five years, with an option to the company to renew its contract for an additional five-year period due notice given in writing.

Washington, March 31 (AP)—A fourth appearance before the Teapot Dome committee of Will Hays, former chairman of the Republican national committee, is in prospect owing to charges that he attempted to halt the oil inquiry four years ago.

The committee will decide whether to call former Senator Atva B. Adams of Colorado and Douglas H. McArthur, former secretary to the late Senator Edwin F. Ladd of North Dakota, who made charges concerning Hays, who is now in Europe.

They said that the North Dakota Senator had told them Hays in 1924 when Ladd was chairman of the Teapot Dome committee and Adams was a Democratic member, tried to induce Ladd to join other Republicans in an effort to stop the inquiry for political reasons.

Littleton Raps Walsh for Idea He'd Quit Sinclair

New York, March 31 (AP)—Martin W. Littleton, chief counsel for Harry F. Sinclair, announced today he would write an "open letter" to Senator Walsh, Teapot Dome Oil lease prosecutor, in reply to Walsh's suggestion in the Senate whether it might be "entirely ethical" for Mr. Littleton to never his connection with the oil man.

He issued the following statement:

"I have been frequently tempted to say what I had in mind about the antics of certain senators, and even of the advisability of their withdrawing from the Senate, but on each occasion I have been restrained by the fact that it was none of my business —a rule which, if followed by senators, would prevent them from disregarding their constitutional duties faithfully intended and becoming 'mediaeval Matties' and scandal mongers."

Mr. Littleton expects to return to Washington at once to prepare for the Sinclair trial.

HOLMES TRIAL IS HALTED BY HIS ILLNESS

Fall River, March 31 (AP)—Trial of Guy Willis Holmes, former New Bedford minister, before the New England Southern Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, was halted today when counsel for defense informed that he was too ill to be present at today's session.

The conference, however, decided to get his testimony at his home and named a committee to visit him.

The committee was expected to go to New Bedford this afternoon and report to the conference tomorrow.

Holmes was unfrocked last year, when criminal charges were made against him by Antonello Fortin, a waitress. His case in the State Supreme Court is still pending.

The conference at its session today elected the Rev. James I. Barthelomew of Edgartown, the Rev. Edward E. Wells, superintendent of the Providence district, and the Rev. Robert Colpitts of Fall River as delegates to the general conference sessions at Kansas City in May.

N. E. RATES ON SOFT COAL REDUCED

Washington, March 31 (AP)—Rates on bituminous coal suitable for household fuel from Pennsylvania producing territory to principal New England points today were ordered reduced by 75 cents per ton by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

At the same time lower rates were prescribed to eastern territory on bituminous coal from southern mining districts.

The commission's order resulted from an attempt to fix rates on low volatile types of bituminous coal which compete with anthracite. The Clearfield district of Pennsylvania was declared to be the typical source of low volatile coal in northern territory. The decision held that from this field to all points in New England States the present rate of $3.72 per ton, which applies to nearly all New England and cities except seaports, should be cut 15 cents per ton.

The decision held that the rates on coal from Cumberland-Piedmont district in Maryland and West Virginia to Baltimore for ship transportation should be cut from $2.59 per ton to $2.46 per ton.

MRS. GOODHUE STATE PRISONER MUCH BETTER LOSES LICENSE

Northampton, March 31 — Mrs. Lemira Goodhue continued to show improvement today at the Cooley-Dickenson Hospital.

Shortly before the arrival of her daughter, Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, for her customary morning visit, Dr. Justin E. Hayes announced that the patient was resting comfortably.

"Mrs. Goodhue was quite comfortable through the night," he said "and there is little change this morning."

Mrs. Coolidge was heartened considerably by the good news, and hurried smilingly to her mother's bedside. She was expected to make another visit this afternoon, and it was understood that John Coolidge would call tomorrow.

Gibraltar, March 31 (AP)—A solemn naval tribunal today was throughout out the famous Royal Oak affair when court-martial of Comdr. H. M. Daniel opened in a courtroom improvised in one of the hangars of the aircraft carrier Eagle.

Comdr. Daniel, represented by Day Kimball, former Hub man and assistant attorney-general of Massachusetts and now a practicing attorney in London, pleaded not guilty on all four charges. These broadly accused him of breaches of naval discipline in writing and sending publicly remarks calculated to bring Rear Admiral Bernard St. G. Collard, his superior, into contempt. A letter was read into evidence indicating that Admiral Collard was dissatisfied about the arrangement. Comdr. Daniel made for his landing from the Royal Oak at Malta.

"KIDNAPED" GIRL, 8, IS ONLY OUT FOR RIDE

Eight-year-old Lydia Wolf of Fairfax st., West Somerville, was sent to the store today. When she did not return in a short time her grandmother made inquiries from children, who said they had seen Lydia get into an automobile and drive away. The police were told the child had been kidnaped and a detail upon Capt. Thomas Damery and Sergt. Augustine J. Fitzgerald scoured the neighborhood. It was at length learned Lydia was accustomed to taking a ride with the family doctor, and inquiry revealed that she had followed her custom today. An hour after her "disappearance" Lydia was at home again.

The doom of the old-fashioned wash tub was spelled today through the slogan "All the wash in the state by 1930" by the Massachusetts Homemakers' Association in convention at the Hotel Statler.

The delegates had the slogans brought forcibly to them in the playlet led by Elizabeth Stone McDonald, professor of home economics at Boston University and director of education in the association.

Seven girls, each representing two counties, sent messages from the clothes basket "telephone" clothes baskets telling of the rise of the lowly wash.

In another part of the program the delegates listened to a talk by Prof. Samuel C. Prescott, head of the department of biology and public health at M. I. T. He exhibited a series of graphs which showed the results of studies on the bacteriology of the laundry process.

RED SOX STAFF PICKED BY MANAGER CARRIGAN

By JOE CASHMAN

Augusta, Ga., March 31 —Three weeks ago Manager Bill Carrigan of the Red Sox set about to develop a pitching staff of six regulars and four good finishing up men.

Since Danny MacFayden and Hal Wiltse were the only two of the candidates in shape at the time, it didn't seem likely that the Fenway pilot would accomplish his aim until well after the season started, but today, with the opening of the campaign still ten days away, he can boast of the box corps he desires.

The last of his worries about the pitchers disappeared when Byron "Slim" Harriss proved himself to be in shape in the first game of the series with Augusta by mowing down the hostiles in order for three innings. It was the first start of the season for the elongated veteran and he had had so much trouble with his arm during the early weeks of training that Carrigan didn't expect much from him.

Joe Cashman

"Slim," however, breezed through in mid season form and the Sox pitching staff was complete.

And it is quite a staff.

REGULAR TWIRLERS PICKED

The regulars in addition to Harriss are Danny McFayden, Charlie Ruffing, Jack Russell and Herb Bradley, right-handers, and Hal Wiltse, a southpaw. The substitutes are Frank Bennett, Jack Wilson, and Ed Morris, right-handers, and Marle Settlemire, a southpaw.

The veterans are a lot better than last year and the new-comers show a lot of class.

All these athletes are good hurlers and they are sure to keep improving under Carrigan's expert instruction. They are all in fine shape, too, and if their supporting cast holds its own, the Sox are going to win a good share of their games during the early weeks of the season when good pitching counts more than at any other time.

With his staff complete, Carrigan will now devote most of his time to improving the rest of the team.

STARTS AT FIELDERS

Up to date the hurlers have demanded all of his attention because he believes they are the most important units in a machine, but for the next 10 days the fielders will hear from him and they can be counted upon to improve as steadily as the pitchers.

A long practice session is on the card for today. It will be the last workout in the South for most of the rookies, 16 of them being due to leave for Boston Sunday.

Only 37 players will remain on the squad then and they will be driven hard all next week, having games scheduled here on Monday and Wednesday and in Columbus, O., Saturday and Sunday with the practice sessions carded on the other days.

BURKE WINS NORTH-SOUTH GOLF TILT

Pinehurst, N. C., March 31 (AP)—Billy Burke of New York shot his way to the United North and South open golf title today with a 75—216—291 for the 72 holes of medal play.

Tommy Armour, national open champion, was second with 73—223—296 and Johnny Farrell of New York third with 73—224—297.

TOUCHSTONE ARRIVES FOR SCHAAF GO

Benny Touchstone of Florida, greatest young Jewish heavyweight in the East, arrived in Boston for his 10 round return match with Jerry Schaaf of this city, which will be held at the Arena Monday night as the feature bout of the Suffolk A. A. card.

Touchstone was to train at Keller & Hayes' Gymnasium at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

There have not been two such evenly matched young heavyweights to come to the front in years. He and Schaaf fought a draw at the Polo Grounds in New York. Then, a few months ago, they fought that sensational, ding-roaring 10 rounder in the Arena, when Schaaf got the decision and Touchstone the cheers of the crowd.

Since then, Touchstone has been resting, building himself up for an other meeting with Schaaf. The defeat at the hands of the 19-second sailor ruined his championship aspirations, after he had piled up victory after victory in Madison Square Garden. He was in the pink of condition when he arrived here, and is prepared to give everything to get back the sensational Schaaf.

Touchstone and Schaaf will be surrounded by an audience with a distinctly South Boston tinge, for Tom Goodwin rounded up Joe "Hambone" Kelley and Jack "Hurry-Up" Hardy, South Boston's two knockout kings many days ago, and paired the Hambone with tough Jack Stone of New York, and Hardy with Connie Owens of Roxbury.

A few weeks ago, when Hardy was scheduled to fight for St. Joseph's T. A. S. in Commercial Hall, he drew the largest crowd that ever sat in at the old Home of Action, and turned hundreds away. There will be plenty of room at the Arena, however, and the South Boston friends of the mighty Hambone and the hurrying Hardy will all be accommodated.

When he was unable to find a suitable opponent for B. C. Miller Svitch, the New York puncher, Goodwin went into old South Boston once more and matched Billy O'Leary of that district with the hard-hitting Charlie Parker for the fourth six-rounder. All eight bouts are old amateur rivals.

In addition to Schaaf, Touchstone, Kelley, Hardy, O'Leary and Parker, Goodwin has the one and only Rocky "Tea Bee" Stone signed for a six-round return match with Cyclone Harris of Worcester. This championship bout, the darkest African will be at stake, for Harris is the darkest African in this particular corner of the world.

MR. BOSTON

By Jack Conway

JESS McMAHON, Tex Rickard's matchmaker, is planning to offer a reward to anybody who can sign an opponent to meet Billy Murphy, Lowell welterweight.

Murphy has been booked to appear at two shows at Madison Square Garden, but it has been necessary on both occasions to scratch his entry on account of trouble in securing somebody to meet him. McMahon recently unburdened his troubles to Mr. Boston.

"I consider Murphy one of the greatest welterweights in the world," said McMahon, "and figure he would prove a sensation if properly introduced to New York fans.

"Try and get a first class welterweight to meet Murphy and you will realize what a great fighter he is. I had Billy booked for two different shows during March, but was not able to use him on either occasion as nobody would enter a ring with him.

"'Why Murphy?' the managers would demand. 'Can't you get somebody else? You know he's a southpaw and has a lot of class. He's liable to lick anybody. Get me somebody else.'"

MR. BOSTON then told McMahon of how Ace Hudkins refused to even work out with Murphy in a Boston gym.

"When Hudkins came to Boston to finish his training for his 10-round bout with Al Mello, he asked for a southpaw to work with," said Mr. Boston. "Billy Murphy was suggested as a sparring partner.

"'Nix on that guy,' piped Hudkins. 'Get somebody else.'

"I later asked Murphy what he knew of Hudkins.

"'I met him when I was out on the Coast a year ago,' said the Lowell boy. 'The Wildcat had just finished punching a big heavyweight around and was looking for sparring partners. I stepped in with him and gave him quite a pasting even if I do say it myself.

"Hudkins is one of those fellows who will knock your head off if you stand and swap punches with him. He can knock the punchers stiff. If you move around and do some boxing, the Ace doesn't know what to do. That's how I made him look silly. He must remember our three-round workout. That's why he turned me down as a sparring partner.'"

THE veteran paused as he touched a torch to a new cigar.

"If Murphy gets a couple of wins under his belt," went on Mr. Boston, "he would make a tremendous attraction if pitted against either Hudkins or Al Mello. I think Murphy would prefer Mello as an opponent. They come from the same town and there is considerable personal rivalry between them.

"Mello has always given Murphy the go by, but he won't be able to do so forever. Let Billy win a couple of fights and there will be a public demand for a meeting between Mello and Murphy.

"When Mello and Murphy meet, they will declare it a public holiday in Lowell. The rival welterweights each have large followings and everybody would want to be at the ringside to get a close-up of the punching duel.

"The Boxing Commission has set the bars up on another Hudkins-Mello bout which gives Murphy a chance to land this match. Billy doesn't figure he has a chance of getting a crack at the Wildcat. His ring wisdom tells him that Hudkins will never forget his three-round workout with Murphy on the Coast.

"IT was a similar gym bout which prevented Harry Greb from ever getting a title shot at Dempsey. Greb blinded Dempsey for three rounds at Grupp's gym in New York shortly after the Tiger won the title from Willard. Later a Philadelphia promoter offered Dempsey a guarantee of $100,000 to clash with Greb in a six-round no-decision match. In those days 100 grand was a whole lot of money even for a champion.

"Despite the fact it was to be a six-round no-decision match, Dempsey passed up the offer. He didn't want to be slapped around by the Pittsburgh Windmill.

"In a 15-round bout, Dempsey would probably have knocked Greb out, but in six rounds he would have been lucky to have laid a glove on him."

ROBERTI STEPS FAST DURING TRAINING

With all the principals of the big finite attraction of the Argonne A. A. at Mechanics Building next Monday night in the Hub, the stage is all set for one of the greatest boxing shows of the season.

While Joe Simonich, Butte, Montana, middleweight arrived here, he did not participate in any gymnasium workout. A capacity crowd, which forced the early closing of the doors greeted the three other headliners at Jom Toland's Gym.

Roberto Roberti, heavyweight champion of Italy, who clashes with Ted Sandwina, champion of Germany in the 10-round wind-up of the card did his training with Nando Tassi, light heavyweight champion of Italy, who meets Roy Mitchell of Halifax in the second 10-rounder.

The Italian champions donned large gloves and while Roberti greatly outweighed his opponent, Tassi gave an excellent account of himself. At times however, it appeared as though the giant Italian was pulling his punches to save his stablemate.

Prior to the arrival of Roberti at the gymnasium, Ted Sandwina, one of the most promising of the Hebrew heavyweights in the ring today, had the spotlight all to himself. He worked out with Jack Gagnon of New Bedford, who met Roberti here in his first bout.

Simonich sent word to the gymnasium that he will be on hand today ready to swap wallops with any of the local men.

Simonich is here to clash with George "Wop" Manolian in the third 10-rounder, which looms up as equally interesting as any of the others. It will be Simonich's first appearance here since he cleaned with Tommy Freeman in the feature bout of the Crosse-up-Pishon Post show at Braves Field last summer.

Interest in the meeting between Roberti and Sandwina continues to cause all sorts of discussions in fistic circles. The bare fact that the Italian has been undefeated in 15 starts in this country, winning three in a row in this city, is proving sufficient to install the Latin as a favorite but the close followers of the game regard Sandwina as the most formidable opponent he has been asked to meet here.

According to Sandwina the fans will be treated to a real surprise Monday night. The Hebrew heavyweight, who annexed the German championship before returning to the land of his birth is confidently looking to taking the measure of Roberti. If he does, no doubt he will supplant the Italian in popularity here and will be in line for some big shots.

In addition there is great interest in the six-round bout between Ray Palkey of Three Rivers, Canada and Al Walker of New Haven and the four-rounder between Neil Sullivan of Cambridge and Big Jim Dwyer of Athtol.

Oxford Crew Beaten by Ten Lengths

By F. A. Wray

London, March 31 (INS).—A powerful Cambridge crew today defeated Oxford by 10 lengths in the 80th annual boat race between the two famous univrsities over the four and one-half-mile course between Putney and Mortlake-on-the-Thames.

Cambridge thus won its 39th victory over its ancient rival. Oxford has had 40 triumphs. One race was a dead heat.

Cambridge covered the 4½ miles in 20 minutes and 21 seconds.

The issue was never in doubt. At the start the Cambridge eight forged to the front and at the end of the first mile was more than 1½ lengths in the lead.

At the second mile Oxford was 5½ lengths in the rear

The next mile was hotly contested, Oxford slowly creeping up on the victors until at the third mile it was only four lengths behind.

The raggedness of the performance of the defeated crew contrasted sharply with the brilliant earmanship of the victors. Over the entire course the Cambridge crew maintained a perfectly proportioned 38 stroke to the minute beat.

The water was smooth over the first two miles of the course, but a brisk wind blew up during the latter part of the race and made the surface rather choppy.

The Oxford men were obviously exhausted at the finish while the Cambridge crew appeared to be perfectly fresh.

As the two boats glided across the finish line a shaft of sunlight broke through the overhanging clouds, giving an added touch of color to the scene.

Waving banners, smartly gowned women and undergraduates wearing striped university jerseys provided a colorful spectacle.

Among the spectaters were the King and Queen of Afghanistan, who are now visiting England.

To avoid interference from the tide, the race was rowed earlier than any previous contest.

Previously Oxford had won 40 races and Cambridge 38. The race in 1877 was a dead heat. Cambridge won in 1924, 1925, 1926 and 1927.

Both crews went into training at the end of December. The Cambridge men trained on the Cam river and the Oxford oarsmen on the River Isis.

At the beginning of March the Cambridge team moved down to Henley-on-Thames to get experience with tidal water, and simultaneously Oxford went to Marlow. Both crews took up their final training at Putney on March 15.

J. B. Collie, No. 6 in the Cambridge shell, stands six feet five inches and weighs nearly 200 pounds.

The two crews follow:

Walter Johnson Back in Hospital

Washington, March 31 (AP)—Far from the picture of physical perfection he portrayed for a score of years in the majors, Walter Johnson, now manager of the Newark International baseball team, has entered Emergency Hospital here to recover from the after-effects of an attack of influenza.

It is doubtful whether the former speed king will be able to be present to start his first year. In his stead to take the managerial reigns will be George McBride, his assistant and one-time shortstop and captain of the Washington club, which Johnson served so long and faithfully.

The champion successfully defended her title playing her usual brilliant game, cutting her shots to all sections of the court. Sarah, who is one of the leading lights among the tennis stars of the country, is but 15 years of age while her sister, Mianne, who she defeated, is 17 years of age.

In the semi-final match of the girls' doubles championship play, Virginia Rice and her partner, Charlotte Miller, won their way into the finals match for the doubles championship. The Miller-Rice pair won over the team composed of Marjorie Sachs and Dorrance Chase.

John Coolidge at Holyoke Fight

Holyoke, Mass., March 31 (AP)—John Coolidge, son of the President, was an interested spectator at a special fight club last night when Harry Ebbets of Freeport, L. I., won on a foul in the fifth round of a scheduled 10-round main bout from Frankie O'Brien of Hartford.

The young Amherst student, who attended the Arena show with friends, appeared to enjoy every number on the program, comenting several times on the merits of the various boxers. John himself it was recalled, has cut quite a figure in collegiate boxing circles, having shown to good form in a bout with a fellow Amherst student some time ago.

KOMAR PAIRED WITH JOE MALCEWICZ

Joe Bull Komar vs. Panther Joe Malcewicz will be the big bout in the feature wrestling match at the Grand Opera House Thursday night.

The last time these two met Komar was disqualified for slugging and the crowd proceeded to Malcewicz. Komar and his friends have since claimed that Komar really won the match as he was not aware that the Panther after Referee Burbank had declared that Komar lost.

Although Komar did nearly beat Malcewicz two falls, yet the last fall did not count because the referee had declared Malcewicz the winner.

Komar says there will be no doubt of the issue this time as he will wrestle so clean that there will be no cause to disqualify him, and he wants to prove to the fans that he can beat the Panther.

Malcewicz will be in Boston Monday to complete his training for the match as he realizes that Komar is tough and he can afford to take no chances on the outcome.

Malcewicz, who seemed to be in a slump his last few appearances, has completely recovered and is the same fast clever, dangerous wrestler he was of old. He will need all his old-time stuff with Komar, as the trick of beating the Bull is pretty tough.

Backing up his great strength he has plenty of heart and is always in condition.

Referee George McLeod will have a tough customer to face when he meets George Walker, the Canadian champion, in another main match on the card. This match should give the fans a real line on George McLeod's condition as it is a main match for the best.

Two other bouts will be added to the card making four in all.

New Haven, Ct., March 31 (AP)—Burwell Dodd of New York city, Sheff '28, was elected captain of the Yale varsity wrestling team tonight, succeeding R. C. Miller of Wilkes Barre, Pa., the intercollegiate 145-pound champion.

Coach O'Connell in speaking of Miller's ability said he was the greatest collegiate wrestler he had ever seen, either having been thrown in four years of mat work and losing only three times, each on time advance.

Miller, in response, said he would not try for the Olympic wrestling team and had no intention of turning professional.

Captain Dodd never wrestled before his freshman year, but was runner-up in the 145-pound class in the intercollegiate title last year and won the championship this year.

BRAVES AND BROOKLYN CLASH

Last Game in Florida for the Tribe; Leave for North Tomorrow

By NICK FLATLEY

West Palm Beach, Fla., March 31—The Braves wipe the sand of Florida off their blistered feet after playing a final game with the Brooklyn Robins this afternoon. The Braves have not been doing so well lately. They have dropped four games in a row, and that dive includes three straight to the revamped team that Uncle Wilbert Robinson of Brooklyn is steering.

These spring contests, however, do not count in the standings and Manager Jack Slattery is pleased to [illegible] great defensive [illegible] he is probably a bears of [illegible] that open [illegible] new [illegible] it keeps up.

SLATT'S FINAL DOPE

Here is Manager Slatt's impression [illegible] of the way things are going:

"Getting beaten in these games doesn't mean much. We try to win, of course, and so do the other birds, but the important point is that we are making gains tough, even when we are losing the whole game.

"The Dodgers have a fine looking staff, and they have been throwing their best at us. The Braves have a batting slump and they won't been getting hits, but we also been trying out new or shaky pitchers and making them fight their own [illegible]

Goldsmith looked like a champion Thursday, and Brandt pitched fine great innings yesterday. He doesn't know the National League batters yet, but he has enough natural stuff to make any ball club back up. He will win a lot of ball games for the Braves this year.

"I will send Wertz and Genewich against the Dodgers this afternoon and then we will take one peek to show that we can beat them. I am satisfied, however, with things as they are going. Brooklyn has Lee Sterling its best against us, while we have been experimenting. We have learned more than enough to make three spring pitchers a natural condition rather than sorrow."

Two fast working right handed Brandt of the Pacific coast looked like a million dollars during the first full game test and Brave Ainger has wowed all year. He was signed for only seven bills and a few lucky blows entered into the picture.

The coast boy knocked in both the Braves runs, the first with a sharp single to left and the second with a [illegible] triple. Ainger [illegible] He also dropped down a perfect sacrifice bunt in one of the clinches and nearly tied the ball game in the ninth with a [illegible] that went far [illegible] at the second baseman.

Eduard has a fast ball and a curve, and a lot of control. And he has more courage than a forest full of lions. He's a stranger in the league and can't use any judgment of his own, but his natural ability is making up for that.

FIELDS POSITION WELL

And he's a real fielder, too. He covered first on one occasion in great shape and made the real play of the game when he looked down a fearful liner off Ila graves bat. The ball shattered off his glove, back toward Edward's straightened after the [illegible] and like a cat and pounced on the ball.

Ainger is proving a flock of [illegible] Hard hit balls went right at fielders, and Eddie Farrell made a prodigious dive that might have cut off the winning run He got to the ball while going through the air like a swallow, it joggled out of his hands when his elbows hit the turf as an umpire [illegible] called it a catch, because Ed held that ball momentarily. But William Klem ruled otherwise, and there was your old ball game.

Wertz and Genewich will pitch today, as the manager announced. Then the Braves will pack up, and after a restful Sunday, start North. The season isn't so far around the corner, and this new Tribe will be ready for it. And Rogers Hornsby is beginning to have his normal swing.

BRING ON YOUR CHAMPS

EARLE SANDE, America's most popular jockey, who was barred from the track by Maryland officials last year, has been reinstated and he is working out daily in preparation of the coming season. He will ride for George Odom at the Belmont track.

B. C. Baseball Squad in Practice Tilt

Boston College's baseball squad will go through its first full nine-inning game of the training season at the Heights today. Coach Hugh Duffy will pit teams A and B against one another on Alumni Field, and then sit back and see just what his ball players are capable of through the full route.

Duffy planned to have this meeting yesterday afternoon, but the rain would not [illegible] postponement until today. The Eagles first game is just a week away, and Duffy has to get his team in shape with all speed to get his athletes into shape for the hard struggle with Georgetown.

MADISON MAY BE SHIFTED TO SECOND FOR N. Y. U.

North Adams, March 31—"Chet" Madison of North Adams, ex-star Drury athlete, who is captain of the New York University varsity nine this spring, may be used at second base with the latter team instead of shortstop, where he has played for the past two years.

Roy Bond, amateur ex-Drury athlete, is a candidate for the New York University outfield.

Bob Bond of Pittsfield, ex-St. Joseph's High athlete in that city, broke a finger in one of the early practice sessions and will not be available for the first few games. He has caught for two years on the New York University nine.

Team A will have Al Weston, Fat Clinton, Fred Monowka and Hank Oxley in the infield. Hugh McNary and Lefty Sousa are due to [illegible] catch and Tommy Walsh on the receiving end. Joe Hurley and Hevis Stokinger will be on first and right field. Joe Cullen, Creedon or Larry Gilleon will see action in the other outfield berth. Creedon may work [illegible] second base berth, too, for Eagle still a bit hampered by a sore arm.

The second team infield will have [illegible] Mahoney and Charley Murphy are all due to work on the mound during the game with Gene Piocentini and Joe Smith receiving.

Smith, like Creedon, is being tried out in two berths and may try his hand at snagging the pill in the outfield. Ted Duffy, Smoky Kelliher and Smith should give the second club a hard-hitting outfield trio.

Duffy is not making any disclaimers in lining up two nines. He has placed his men so that a good club will be played and that he can get an idea of the game strength of some of the rookies who are fighting to make the Eagle outfit. Today's game will go a long way towards settling all disputes over the berths.

WOODS AND ROCHAN BATTLE TO A DRAW

Berlin, N. H., March 31—Wee Willie Woods of Scotland and Gene Rochan of Boston fought a 10-round draw here tonight in the fastest and most gruelling battle seen here for several years. Both men started at it as gone to make short work of the fight. Woods dropped Rochan for the count of nine in the first round, but he cried a bid cut over the eye and battled with it closed for the remainder of the fight.

Rochan was the aggressor throughout and put up a game, clever battle, but the defensive work of Woods was very much in evidence

Hub soccer fans are in for another treat today with the Woodsies, Associated Cup finalists, and the New York Nationals, National cup finalists, in a league game at Walpole st.

Both elevens are tuning up for their important cup finals, which take place next week-end. The Woodsies will play Bethlehem in the American cup at Philadelphia Saturday and the Nats clash with the Chicago Bricklayers on Sunday at the Polo Grounds.

NATS IMPROVE GREATLY

On the last visit of the Nats to the Hub they were a downtrodden aggregation, being at the bottom of the league and fell easy prey to the Blue and Gold. But this time things are a little different, for the Nats have placed themselves in a position where all that they need to become the open champions is to defeat the Bricklayers in the final game on Sunday tomorrow.

Most of the success of the Stonemen City is due to the return from Scotland of Donald and Chatton, two defense men, who have completely strengthened the Nats by their brilliant playing.

Coupled with this is the clever work of Henderson at center. The ex-light blue seemingly having become thoroughly acclimated, is leading the attack in fine style and also scoring consistently.

Tommy Croft, the former Fall River star, is also playing good soccer for the Nats and is sure to get a hand from the fans today for the [illegible] international is a great Hub favorite.

This quartette should make it more than interesting for the Woodsies, but the latter are not worrying over the outcome for they also have been showing well in opposition as their record will testify.

LOCALS HAVE STRONG ELEVEN

The locals will field practically the strongest eleven, the only doubtful starter being Johnny Ballantine, who is nursing a slight injury received in the last game in [illegible] cup game.

Phil Gonsalves, however, is ready to step in and play the inside left position and if he plays like [illegible] against Fall River Sunday, Fleming will be well supported on the wing.

The kickoff is scheduled for 3 p. m. and Dick Rose of New Bedford will be the referee. Two of the linesmen will be [illegible] Johnstone and Thompson Ritchie of the American Federal Association assisting him on the lines.

LOMSKI READY FOR LOUGHRAN

New York, March 31—Leo Lomski, Aberdeen Assassin, proved that he is still the logical contender to the throne of Tommy Loughran, the [illegible] heavyweight championship of the world, by his victory over Joe Sekyra last night.

Although Lomski is the contender, he did not look very impressive in his 10-round battle. He was content to punch away at Sekyra's body and refused to open up with any of the [illegible] he has been showing in the gymnasium.

Sekyra made a dying attempt in the tenth round, but Lomski met the rushes and peppered him with jabs and hooks.

The Brown and Blue diamond mentor has witched his charges work out on the Old Athletic Field for the entire week, and he feels confident that the 22 men whom he has retained for next week's strenuous practice sessions will all be of use to him.

The Medford mentor is not planning all his hopes on Smith, however, for the trio of twirlers who came into Dana's [illegible] have shown enough to hope for. He is specially delighted with "Red" Butters, the lanky basketball star from the Canal Zone.

The Brookline Baptist Church at 1371 Beacon st., as a society, is just 100 years old. Eight hundred farmers composed the population at the time it was founded. The present edifice is the third, and the parish under the genial leadership of the Rev. Samuel M. Lindsay has grown strong, and the services popular.

BIG ECONOMY MOVE TO CUT DOWN FILM WASTE

Stock Yard Methods Will Save Producers Millions Yearly

John M. Mulky, Detroit Salt King, who is in Hollywood to make survey of wasted tears.

By R. J. STURN

"Unlimited wealth is going to waste every day through tear drops shed by movie queens."

This was the statement of John M. Mulky, the Salt King, five minutes after he registered at the Hollywood Plaza Hotel yesterday.

Mulky pointed eloquently to the way the stock yards utilize by-products.

"My hasty survey," declared Mulky, "indicates that millions of dollars worth of salt can be reclaimed.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Sir:

Last night I put up a beef with the wife about the way she cooked the roast. Finally, to stop the jawing back and forth, I suggested throwing the meat to the landlord's dog (imagine my embarrassment when she opened the window and did just that) but again if you can imagine her embarrassment, next morning whilst walking through the yard, the dog bit her on the leg.

Three German scientists, by utilizing 6,000,000 volts of electricity, hope (next month) to break down the atom.

The only danger is that the experiment may blow the world to powder. Then they'll have a lot of damage suits on their hands.

Or perhaps it's just another scheme to stimulate business for the insurance agents.

If the world is blown to bits a lot of people will certainly be put out about it. Particularly fellows who are taking saxophone lessons.

FANCY WRITIN', WE CALL'S IT

(Gilroy Evening Dispatch)

"The table was laden with wholesome food and richly embellished with delectable dessert, presented a delightful spectacle of kind hearts doing violence to themselves in the spreading of a feast long to be remembered by the happy wedded couple and their numerous friends. After the season of visitation spiced with the essence of good will and best wishes to the donors for their hospitality, and the kindest of greetings to the victims of Cupid's dart, the happy guests returned to their homes to muse upon the joy that still invests the world."

These landlords are certainly getting particular. Ad in Denver Post says:

EFFORT IS SUCCESS

By LUCY LOWELL

HERE is a whole sermon in a paragraph—one of those which Elbert Hubbard preached and left to us for direction of our thought:

"Genius is only the power of making continuous efforts. The line between failure and success is so fine that we scarcely know when we pass it; so fine that we are often on the line and do not know it.

"How many a man has thrown up his hands at a time when a little patience would have achieved success. As the tide goes clear out, so it comes clear in.

"In business sometimes prospects may seem darkest when really they are on the turn. A little more persistence, a little more effort, and what seemed hopeless failure may turn to glorious success. There is no failure except in no longer trying. There is no defeat except from within, no really insurmountable barrier save our own inherent weakness of purpose."

It is not, as a matter of fact, what you accomplish or fail to accomplish which determines your success. For success is not expressed in externals, actually, but by something which takes place within your own mind.

And this something is established not by the fact that you have reached a goal—for a goal, after all, may not be particularly worthy—but by the fact that you have set up an ideal and that in spite of obstacles and discouragements and setbacks of all sorts you have kept trying—you have approached a little nearer it than you were when first it was erected in your thought.

CHECK-REIN YOUTH

By L. LAMAR MATTEWS

"I AM wondering if a child should not be denied little pleasures occasionally, just on general principles," said a young father recently. Even though there is no good reason why he should not have certain small privileges, his parents might withhold them—as a sort of disciplinary measure."

"Why do you think that?" asked a young woman.

"So he will understand that he can't have everything in the world he wants," was the answer. "And so he will appreciate what he does get."

"The man is able to give his children anything in reason; and nothing pleases him more than to see his children pleased. He is disposed to buy for them whatever they wish and to provide every little joy and amusement possible for them. But he is also anxious that they should develop into worthwhile people.

"I know that I enjoy what I have now," he continued, "because of the fact that I did not have it when I was a child. I also know that having to get out and get things for myself kept me from being a lazy, worthless boy. I wanted to be lazy. I would have enjoyed living easy and playing around. But I had to hustle early and late—and I got a lot of satisfaction out of my efforts, too."

The young woman then took up the conversation.

"Some of us had any discipline at home," she said. "Mother let us do just about as we pleased. If she told us to do certain tasks, and we left them undone, nothing came of it. If she told us not to do so-and-so, and we disobeyed her, we could always smooth it over and escape the consequences of disobeying her.

"My older brother and I developed some sense of duty and responsibility in spite of our lack of discipline, but my younger brother is terrible. He does as he pleases at home—he always has done it. When he went to school he thought he could continue to follow his own inclinations. Now he is starting in business; and he cannot realize that he must do what other people say instead of what he thinks he should do."

Those two phases of discipline enter into the training of every child.

Restraint and obedience are important matters in the rearing of children. Grown-ups as well as little folks do what they have to do, no more, no less. After they have realized that they must do their share of the world's work and must proceed according to instructions, then they will learn to think and act for themselves.

It is this daily, weekly, monthly, yearly disciplining that makes strong dependable men and women.

NEW ENGLAND BUILDING AT FRESH TOP

By FRANK R. MELOON,
Financial Editor.

New England building for the last reported week records another new high for all time. This high is for the first week in this and previous years. It shows that new building and engineering operations in New England for the week ended March 27 totaled $13,168,700. The previous week's total, also a high record for that week for all time, was $11,480,100. Figures are furnished us by F. W. Dodge Corp. The average for previous weeks this year is $7,725,900.

Ability of Pres. A. R. Graustein, former Boston lawyer, now heading International Paper, is demonstrated in a new way. As the news would say, "comes announcement" that International Paper has $6,500,000 paper profit in the New England Power Association holdings.

What do you think of John Raskob's yardstick for measuring stock values? Mr. Raskob, financial genius of the big automotive concern, is being variously criticised.

Edward J. Pearson Howard Elliott

Some say he's right, others declare he's wrong. Meanwhile, the stock days very much in the limelight.

Wall st. writer says: "An observer, commenting on Mr. Raskob's 15-for-1 standard for measuring the proper price of stocks, says that under this standard Goodrich is worth 223 a share and Kelly Springfield apparently worth zero. Comparing these two stocks further, he says: 'Its (Kelly's) average earnings the past seven years have been deficits of $2.70 a year on the common, after allowing for preferred dividends. On this record it sells for $12 or 56 per cent of par, while Goodrich, which earns $16 and pays $4 sells for 84 per cent of par. In such cases Mr. Raskob's yardstick would seem of no value, either as a lever to hoist the one while it is low, or as a club for the one which is too high.'"

President Dana D. Barnum's Boston Consolidated Gas Co. makes an interesting announcement. It is to the effect that it has 550 customers using gas for house heating and that the company is yet to have its first discontinuance for such service. Half a hundred installations have been made this year.

* * *

Boston Consolidated Gas apparently enjoys a good deal of that often mentioned asset item of "good will." Last year only seven of its customers felt sufficiently vexed to complain to the Department of Public Utilities on Beacon Hill.

A glance at the list of present directors of the New Haven Railroad gives an insight into just how nearly 100 per cent New Englandrulet this carrier is. The list, with residence of the several directors, follows:

Edward Milligan, Hartford, Ct.; Francis T. Maxwell, Rockville, Ct.; Howard Elliott, New York, N. Y.; Arthur T. Hadley, New Haven, Ct.; James L. Richards, Boston, Mass.; J. Horace Harding, New York, N. Y.; Frank W. Matteson, Providence, R. I.; Joseph B. Russell, Boston, Mass.; Walter B. Losher, Bridgeport, Ct.; Edward G. Buckland, New Haven, Ct.; Benjamin Campbell, New Haven, Ct.; Edward J. Pearson, New Haven, Ct.; Robert G. Hutchins, New York, N. Y.; Frederic C. Dumaine, Groton, Mass., George Dwight Pratt, Springfield, Mass.; Harold J. Pratt, New York, N. Y.; Earle P. Charlton, Fall River, Mass.; Edward G. Goss, Waterbury, Ct.

Note on the list of New Haven's directors the names of Edward J. Pearson, present president, and his predecessor, Howard Elliott.

* * *

Mr. Charlton, one of the newest of the New Haven directors, fits Woolworth figure, holds 12,000 shares of New Haven, according to latest figures made public. His holdings were previously set at 9,000 shares. In the name of E. M. Hamlin & Co. were 10,475 shares.

* * *

It is interesting to note Pennsylvania Railroad at the head of the largest holders of New Haven, with 73,025 common shares. This is an increase of about 20,000 shares over the previously published figures. It appears to confirm the report printed in this column several months ago of "Pennsylvania buying."

* * *

Boston Stock Exchange specialist in an active New York bank tells me he ordered a lot of stock at the opening Thursday. He received the confirmation of his transactions over the wire at 2:30 p. m. Usually a confirmation is obtainable within a few minutes.

* * *

Insull interests are reported negotiating with the Insull-controlled Middle West Public Service Co. The public service company operates properties in Moline, New Hampshire and Evanston, Ill. Its gas, electric and plant is carried on the company's books at $40,000,000. Its profits for the past six years on common stock average around $13.50 a share.

* * *

Boston News Bureau quotes "Times Financial Service" to the effect conservative brokers have adopted policy of demanding 100 per cent margin on purchases of stock on "Radio." If 100 per cent doesn't spell the peak of safety for the broker, then we give it up.

RADIO-DIALOG

THE chief feature of tonight's Boston Symphony Orchestra broadcast through WEEI will be Edward Burlingame Hill's Symphony in C minor. As a preliminary, Prof. Hill will give a radio description of his composition. He is professor of music at Harvard.

During the New York Symphony broadcast through WEEI, Walter Damrosch will direct his players in the Andante movement from Beethoven's Symphony No. 1; Alexander Scene's of Saint-Saens: "Prelude and Finale from "Tristan and Isolde" of Wagner; and Weber's "Invitation to the Dance."

DR. HARMON VAN ALLEN, rector of the Church of the Advent on Brimmer st., will be the speaker in tonight's Thoughtful Half Hour, conducted at the Boston Evening American studio of WLOE.

The Philco Hour, heard through WEEI, with "Uncle Abner, Sheerp" to the ears of radio listeners. As usual, Jessica Dragonette and Colin O'More will be among the principals.

HAYDN'S "Farewell" Symphony will be played by the Columbia System's symphony orchestra tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. This composition has the interesting feature of obliging the players to leave, one by one, during the final movement, until there remain only the conductor and two violinists. On the same program, to be heard through WNAC, will be the Good Friday Spell from Wagner's "Parsifal."

The Emerson quartet will sing Schubert's "Who Is Sylvia," and "Hark, Hark, the Lark" from WOR-WNAC at 9 o'clock tomorrow evening. During the following hour there will be chamber music; the American Singers in a special Palm Sunday program at 10, and the United Military Band at 10:15.

TOM CAREY'S Irish Minstrels and his Irish Masked Tenor will be heard in a half hour's broadcast from WLOE commencing at 9:30.

Josef Hofmann, pianist; Nina Koshetz, soprano, and Phillip Bernolfe, 'cellist, will be featured in tomorrow night's Atwater Kent Hour through WEEI.

ARY DULFER and Cyrus Ullian will be heard in the second of their weekly Sunday evening programs of classical music from WLOE at 10 p. m. tomorrow. The two musicians will be heard together in the Brahms D minor sonata for violin and piano.

Radio tourists will visit the Holy Land with Malcolm La Prade, "The Man From Books," tomorrow evening. This should be one of Mr. La Prade's most interesting broadcasts. The Easter period is the high spot in the festival observances of communicants in the Eastern churches, taking the place which Christmas holds in the West. The Oriental church calendar is two weeks later than the Western calendar, however. Perhaps this is fortunate, as it makes it easier to preserve peace among the many sects which guard the holy places of Palestine.

HAYDN'S "Farewell" Symphony will be played by the Columbia System's symphony orchestra tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. This composition has the interesting feature of obliging the players to leave, one by one, during the final movement, until there remain only the conductor and two violinists. On the same program, to be heard through WNAC, will be the Good Friday Spell from Wagner's "Parsifal."

THE Sager Players will celebrate their second radio birthday anniversary on WEEI tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock.

WIN BIRTHDAY PARTY PRIZE

There are a lot of good reasons to be glad of your birthday. Why not let the Boston Evening American in on one particular reason?

Then maybe you'll be the guest of this paper and of Loew's State Theater at the show.

Of course you know why you're glad your birthday happens to fall on the day it is. In order to qualify for the birthday party being arranged, all you have to do is write a short letter to the Birthday Editor of this paper and tell him all about it.

If your letter is a good one, you receive a guest award.

Here are the rules: Anyone under 16 years of age is eligible to compete—

You must write it in 75 to 25-word letter telling why you are glad your birthday is in the month it is.

You can send your letter telling of your birthday any time within one week preceding the date.

You must not be older than 15 years.

TWO LOSE LIVES IN FIERY PLANE

Los Angeles, March 31 (AP)—Another "Jennie" plane—one of the type condemned as unsafe by the army—passed out of existence here last evening, carrying an aviation instructor and his pupil to a fiery death.

The plane was seen to burst into flames as it neared Compton, a suburb, and fell like a blazing rocket. Not enough was left of the wreckage or the victims to make identification easy. Several hours after the crash the men were identified as John S. Smith, an instructor, and Frank O'Connor, his pupil, both of Los Angeles.

CARDINAL GASPARRI MUST TAKE LONG REST

Rome, March 31 (AP)—It Tevere today said that Cardinal Gasparri, papal secretary of state, has been ill and confined to his bed for the last several days and that doctors had ordered a complete rest.

PRESS NEW BILL TO END FOREIGN MONOPOLIES

Washington, March 31 (AP)—The Newton bill to permit American importers to form buying pools in an effort to combat foreign trade monopolies today had the right of way in the House with leaders prepared to press for a final vote before night.

Carrying the approval of a majority of the House judiciary committee, the bill is directed at the British rubber monopoly and also at monopolies by other foreign nations in potash and sisal.

The measure has been recommended by Secretary Hoover, Louis J. Taber of the National Grange, and a host of automobile and tire manufacturers. It was opposed in committee by three members, Magnuardia, a New York Republican, and Dominick, of South Carolina, and Bowling of Alabama, both Democrats.

The measure would amend the Webb-Pomerene act to permit the formation of such pools, but would not change provisions of the law with reference to export trade associations.

"The legislation is designed to meet an acute situation affecting the import trade of the country," Representative Dyer of Missouri, ranking Republican on the committee, said in reporting the measure.

The report pointed out that "the development, by certain foreign nations, of monopolies and semi-monopolies has greatly increased the prices of the products monopolized in the American market."

The three members opposing the measure, in a minority report, charged it "would create opportunity for absolute monopoly and control of any raw material."

"U. S. Naval Reserve" Oil Becoming World's Best Joke As British Company Buys and Peddles It Abroad

THE Secretary of the Navy is investigating to find a way to prevent a British-owned oil company from buying and exporting three hundred thousand barrels of oil a month, produced in the Naval Reserve field in California.

The "Naval Reserve" is a jocular name to give this oil field.

It is about time for the United States Government to get interested in conserving our limited oil supply. The depletion of the Naval Reserve oil is nothing but a striking example of what is happening to our total oil deposits.

This particular area of oil-bearing public land was by Congress set aside for the use of the navy. But, of course, the navy and army, in time of war, have the first call on all our oil. When it has all been pumped out of the ground—as they are on their way to do—not a battleship nor an airplane, nor a tank nor an automobile can move.

That is, none of them can move unless we are allowed to import the oil produced by British companies which are now cornering non-American oil.

AN exhaustive article in the Boston Sunday Advertiser of last Sunday called the precarious oil situation to the attention of Congress and the country.

The principal agent of the British Government in rounding up the world's supplies is the British-controlled Royal Dutch Shell Company. Its president, Sir Henri Deterding, was knighted for services to the British Empire in the World War. It has production in Mexico, Colombia, the East Indies and Iraq. And it has production in the United States.

In fact, at present it has its principal production in the United States. The company's annual report covering the year 1926 (the latest available) shows that in that year it produced 5,793,267 tons of oil in the United States, exactly twice as much as it produced in the Dutch East Indies, supposed to be its main field of operation.

The 1927 figures of Royal Dutch production are not yet published. They are going to show that nearly half the company's production was from its United States properties. Only three oil companies in this country had as large a 1927 production as the British Government's Oil Division, popularly known as Royal Dutch Shell.

A FEW startling figures will show what is going on. Last year the United States produced 72 per cent. of the world's output of petroleum, but the United States has only 12 per cent. of the world's petroleum reserves. How long our oil will last under these circumstances is nothing but a matter of mathematical calculation.

The world outside the United States produced only 28 per cent. of the oil consumed last year, though they have 88 per cent. of the world's oil reserves. And in "the world outside the United States" these reserves are owned, in the main, by Royal Dutch Shell and the Anglo-Persian Oil Company. In the latter, the British Government has a 51 per cent. outright ownership.

Perhaps the facts brought out by the Secretary of the Navy's Board of Inquiry, headed by Admiral Rousseau, may even stir the Federal Oil Conservation Board into action. President Coolidge appointed the Conservation Board on December 19, 1924, and urged them to see what action could be taken to stop the dissipation of our oil resources. He said in his letter of appointment:

"It is evident that the present method of capturing our oil deposits is wasteful to an alarming degree.

"Developing aircraft indicates that our national defense must be supplemented, if not dominated, by aviation. It is even probable that the supremacy of nations may be determined by the possession of available petroleum and its products."

IN the three years since this Conservation Board was appointed, its accomplishments have been exactly nil.

Here is a subject for investigation AND ACTION by Congress, which is fond of probes.

WILL IT COME TO THIS?

Foreign Corporations Drain Our Supply While Conserving Own Reserves Abroad

On Monday Admiral Rousseau of the United States Navy testified regarding reports that foreign-controlled corporations are draining America's rich oil supply while conserving their own reserves abroad.

The Admiral, head of a board appointed by Secretary of the Navy Wilbur to stop the exportation of oil from the Naval Reserve in California, made the following points:

1—At least one lease in Naval Reserve No. 2 is being used for exportation by the British-controlled Shell Company interests.

2—While Great Britain is making a concerted effort to conserve its oil, Admiral Rousseau pointed out that the United States produces 72 per cent of the oil used throughout the world.

3—He suggested that the Federal Oil Conservation Board (which thus far has been inactive) was established for the purpose of stopping the looting of our oil deposits and getting a reasonable price for our oil exported, just as the British rubber monopoly made the United States pay a high price for rubber.

The main points in the Admiral's testimony were as follows:

"The Honolulu Consolidated Oil Company has a lease in Naval Reserve No. 2 which produces 250,000 to 300,000 barrels a month. It has a contract with the Shell Company of California for its entire production. The Shell Company exports to the Far East an amount of manufactured products equivalent to the production of this lease.

"It is difficult to trace the disposition of the oil from the oil reserves. Not only is the Shell Corporation, a foreign concern, obtaining oil from one reserve lease, but the Standard Oil and other companies are shipping manufactured oil products abroad. So that it may very well be that a portion of the oil of every lease in the reserve finds its way abroad for sale.

"Out of 903,000,000 barrels of oil produced in this country last year, 15 per cent, or 141,000,000 barrels, is used abroad. The United States furnishes two-thirds of Europe's gasoline requirements, and supplies 72 per cent of the oil used throughout the world."

Representative Britten, a member of the committee before which the Admiral was testifying, said:

"National interest has been focussed on the necessity of conserving oil in the ground by the farsighted and aggressive attitude taken by the Hearst papers, for which they are to be commended."

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

HOWEVER hard the blows of life may fall
Or its decrees may seem,
The hand of Justice shows behind it all
Beneath the starlight's gleam.

For stars, so old and yet so ageless, still
Can soothe man's restless heart;
Its questioning and tumult they can still,
Can ease its ache and smart.

He can forget the force of circumstance,
Its prison walls and bars;
He can ignore the strange mishaps of chance,
Beneath the tender stars.

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

First must give place to last, because last must have his time to come; but last gives place to nothing, for there is not another to succeed. —Bunyan.

Persons and humors may be jumbled and disguised; but nature, like quicksilver, will never be killed. —L'Estrange.

Curiosity is only vanity. Most often we only wish to know in order to talk about it. —Pascal.

OH, THESE WOMEN!

By Leola Allard

MISS KATHERINE LARKIN teaches modern art to the boys in the House of Refuge on Randall's Island, New York. She says her 400 bad boys, between the ages of 9 and 21, turn out much more interesting work than good boys from fine homes.

"They have more imagination and more initiative," says the teacher. Their art work was exhibited in New York recently and was remarkable.

A poor little girl attending school in the Bronx looked cold when she came to school. The teacher had a fur coat she had outgrown and which she was saving for just such an emergency. She kept the child after school, took her home with her and gave her the coat.

Next day the child came in her thin wrap, shivering again.

Calling her aside so that she wouldn't embarass her, the teacher asked her where her fur coat was.

"Well," said the child, about whose future no one need worry, "my sister works in a factory and she looked swell in the coat, so I rented it to her for seven cents a day."

Dr. Ezra Davis, a Chicago physician, said that the reason the human race is deteriorating is that it eats too much chocolate and meat sandwiches, and that it would be better mentally and morally if it abstained from intoxicating drinks, certain kinds of music and close dancing.

Women teachers at Columbia University say that if children cannot do their arithmetic problems, they invariably get the right answer if you ask them in terms of dogs. Seven and nine do not mean anything, but seven dogs and nine dogs mean happiness, and the children can figure out the answer pronto.

A Chicago couple on the verge of divorce recently went to Judge William N. Gemmill for advice. The husband said his wife smoked a cigar and he was through with her. The wife said she smoked it on a bet and no men were present. Judge Gemmill chewed the end of his pencil and smiled reminiscently.

"Why, my old grandmother used to smoke a pipe," he told them, "and she smoked and smoked. And nobody ever tried to stop her. She was a grand old lady."

He reconciled them.

HERE'S A CALENDAR FOR APRIL

By DR. FRANK CRANE

SUNDAY, April 1—We are all fools sometimes. The principal thing is not to be a fool twice in the same way.

April 2—Train your mind. No man is worth more than $1.50 a day from his chin down. There is no limit to what he is worth from his chin up.

April 3—Go on! If you can't do anything else you can do that.

April 4—The principal thing to learn is that you can control your mind.

April 5—Love old books.

April 6—Do your best every day. Don't allow yourself to slump.

April 7—Value wonder. It keeps the soul fresh.

April 8—Failure is the manure of success.

April 9—The way to achieve signal success is to find the impossible and do it.

April 10—Don't depend on enthusiasm. Keep at work.

April 11—To achieve prominence is to invite brickbats.

April 12—No resolution is of value unless it contains something you can do at once.

April 13—Stick to it. More people fail because they don't keep on than because they never began.

April 14—Let your goodness be shown by your deeds and not by your creed.

April 15—"Men, be human," said Rosseau. "It is your first duty."

April 16—The worst trait in human nature is to envy another's success.

April 17—Beware of superstition. It is pure dirt.

April 18—You need to be in tune in the family and in a business organization as much as in an orchestra.

April 19—All have trouble. The question is, can you bear it nobly?

April 20—The laws of health are, avoid stimulants, take exercise, keep clean and don't worry. All other remedies are quack prescriptions.

April 21—Living is an art, not a science. It is to be learned by experience, not out of books.

April 22—Don't confuse restlessness with ambition.

April 23—Cultivate decision. Do something, even if it is wrong.

April 24—Turn away from bitter thoughts. Face the light.

April 25—Practice meditation. It is the one way to get a true perspective of life.

April 26—Keep your chin up and you can get away with anything.

April 27—Don't argue with your conscience. Obey it!

April 28—Don't be afraid to say, I don't know.

April 29—Don't indulge in self-pity.

April 30—The devil's other name is dirt.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, March 31—The museum and flea circus on 42d street is in the fourth year of its "run" and threatens to eclipse the record of the Able show. After 11 o'clock it fills with crowds in evening dress from the theaters all about it. It is a "stunt"—like going to Reuben's for a sandwich.

The museum is no different from its predecessor other days. Even the amusing twisted mirrors that dwarf or elongate the figure line the entrance halls. There are also lung testers and penny peep shows featuring "The Art of Posing" and "One o'Clock Baby."

The suave tuxedoed announcer with touches of silver at his temple might have stepped from an ad. Phillips Oppenheim. The exhibition continues with only an occasional change in the lineup of human freaks. The latest entry is Jean Litserra, the man with two bodies.

He is an Italian and from his stomach protrudes what seems to be a shrunken body like those preserved in clinics in alcholic jars. All but the claw-like hands are covered, and it is the announcer's contention that Jean started out to be twins.

He further announces that Jean, coming from a normal family, is otherwise normal, married and the father of three healthy children. At which point, the night I was there, a lady in an evening wrap uttered a slight half scream and slumped to the floor. Painting is not unusual in the museum.

There are also the bearded lady, the armless man who autographs his pictures with his toes, the man who defies electricity, the performing seal and the half-man and half-girl. The admission is trifling, but if you fall for all the rackets it is expensive enough.

The chief attraction, of course, is the flea circus with its tiny performers, under an enlarging glass, rolling balls, climbing ladders, engaging in chariot races and such. They are taken out of wool balls for the show and hop back into them after it is over.

NEW YORK has a group of clerks and stenographers organized in protest against the paper napkin. Its members will not patronize eating places using them. The least they could do would be to serve them with stickers. A non-skid paper napkin is needed as much as a good five-cent cigar.

AN INNOVATION has come in well trained dancing choruses taking bows. Instead of the entire group rushing to the footlights, just one of the aggregation steps forth to acknowledge the compliment.

THEY came into a Park ave. cafe and all eyes turned toward them. She was adorned with diamonds and swathed in ermine. He was resplendently groomed and sported a monocle. After they were seated they began conversing in sign language and it offered a touch of something like drama.

THE night clubs continue to abandon the "Hello Sucker!" attitude. One in the Fifties actually displays a sign over its hat check room, "Tipping is not necessary." Stick around. I'm full of surprises.

WOULDN'T it surprise you, for instance, any morning now to wake up and read the night clubs are serving a regular-size sandwich for a dollar and a half?
